Britain, France Recognize Franco Rule

Decisions Speed Early Ending Of 3-Year Civil War

Chamberlain Reveals British Action Before Commons, Paris Takes Like Action Few Minutes Later; Plan To Evacuate Refugees Drawn.

LONDON—Great Britain, acting in collaboration with France, recognized the Spanish Nationalist government of Gen. Francisco Franco today and sped the 31-months-old civil war in Spain toward an early end.

A few minutes later, France's council of ministers extended formal de jure recognition to the Franco regime and shoved the crumbling republican government another step toward defeat.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain announced recognition to an expectant house of commons.

"As a result of the fall of Barcelona and the over-running of Catalonia," Chamberlain said, "Gen. Franco now controls the greater part of Spanish territory."

Other Developments.

Recognition of the Franco government and withdrawal of legal recognition of the republicans coincided with:

1—Authoritative announcement in republican sources in Paris that republican Premier Juan Negrin had accepted a British offer to supervise evacuation of republican political, government and military leaders from Madrid. British, French and United States warships may aid in the evacuation.

2—Departure of republican President Manuel Azana from the Paris embassy after dispatching a representative to Madrid, presumably to discuss with Negrin the final plans for ending the war. A spokesman for Azana said his departure for an Alpine retreat and delegation of his powers to Mariano Gomez, president of the supreme court, indicated he considered his mandate as president ended.

No Reprisals, Promise.

3—Assurances by Franco—in vague language—that there would be no political reprisals against republicans in Spain, although he insisted that "criminals" should face military tribunals.

"His majesty's government," the prime minister continued, "has

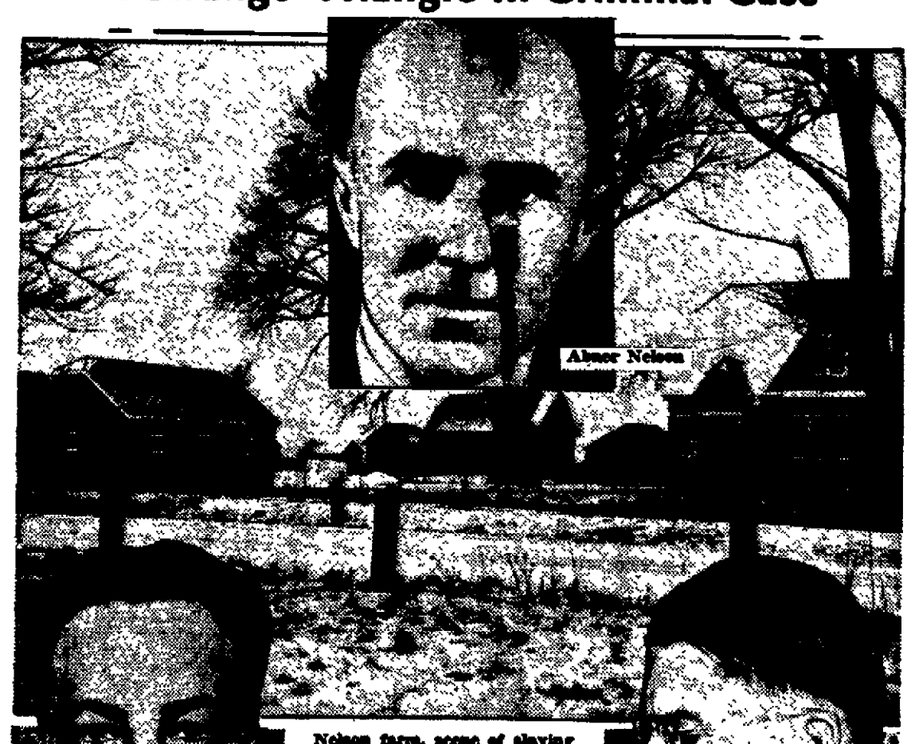
A Strange Triangle In Criminal Case



Nelson farm, scene of slaying

Three boyhood chums who became fellow church and lodge members are the principals in a kidnap-murder case near Morris, Ill. Elvin Wood, police say, has confessed shooting and killing his pal, Abner Nelson, whom he planned to kidnap and hold for ransom. S. J. Holderman, lifelong friend of both men, as state's attorney must prosecute Wood for the murder of Nelson, which occurred at his farm home.

PEACE BUT NO UNION SEEN IN LABOR PARLEY

Capital Observers Believe CIO and A. F. of L. Will Arrange Formal Division of Field.

ACCEPT ROOSEVELT BID

Green Arranges Committee to Negotiate; Expect Lewis to Take Similar Action.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—"Peace without union" between the CIO and the American Federation of Labor was being discussed in the capital today as the possible outcome of President Roosevelt's appeal to end organized labor's civil war.

Predictions were general in both governments and labor circles that the two organizations, at odds for three years, would be much more likely to arrange a formal division of the union labor field than to merge their forces entirely.

Believe Conference Certain.

Although some experts were none too optimistic that even such a truce could be arranged, they expressed certainty that John L. Lewis of the CIO would follow William Green of the A. F. of L. in accepting the president's invitation to appoint a peace committee.

Shortly after Green made known his position, the A. F. of L. yesterday issued a general call for cooperation of government, business, labor and farmers in "expanding production and putting men to work."

This proposal came as a Roosevelt administration campaign to reassure business and industry was going forward on several fronts.

Besides the new attempt to bring about labor peace, this drive included:

1. Secretary Hopkins' pledge of co-operation and his declaration that creation of business confidence was a New Deal aim.

"No New Taxes."

2. Statements by Mr. Roosevelt, Hopkins and Secretary Morgenthau that no new taxes were planned and that corporation taxes might be revised to help "unfreeze" idle capital.

3. The decision of the federal monopoly committee not to propose new anti-trust legislation this year.

Although these developments evoked widespread acclaim in business and congressional quarters, some anti-Roosevelt senators said a determined effort to cut federal expenditures would do much more to restore business confidence than administration promises of no new taxes.

Prosecutor Will Submit Evidence In Three Cases

Special Session Thursday Will Probe Discrepancies In Municipal Court Accounts, Conservancy District Taxes And Plymouth Village.

The Richland county grand jury will be called into special session Thursday morning to investigate discrepancies in the Mansfield municipal court and conservancy district accounts and an embezzlement charge against A. F. Marvin, former Plymouth village clerk, Prosecutor G. W. Marriott announced today.

Marriott said he had obtained enough evidence in his investigation of shortages in the Mansfield court and taxing district accounts to warrant a special session of the jury.

The shortages, revealed in special audits by state examiners, resulted in the dismissal of Allen K. Ports, former municipal court clerk, and Russell K. Erdenberger, conservancy district tax collector. Ports was discharged Jan. 31 and Erdenberger last Saturday.

The shortage in the municipal court accounts amounted to $4,259, while county authorities estimated the conservancy tax discrepancies at "between $1,700 and $2,000."

The examiner's report of Plymouth village records showed discrepancies totaling $2,698, mostly in the municipal water and electric accounts.

Marriott said it was "unlikely" that any charges will be filed in the Mansfield cases.

Says Action Up To Jury.

"Both cases will be presented directly to the jury along with the embezzlement charge, and it will be up to the jury to decide the action to be taken concerning the discrepancies," the prosecutor said.

He added that no one had requested him to file charges against any one in either of the shortages in Mansfield despite the dismissals.

Marriott said he was making up a list of witnesses today for the grand jury investigation.

Declining to say who the major witnesses would be, he added that "of course we will call those who are best acquainted with circumstances surrounding the cases."

It was believed that Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch and County Treasurer Kolb will be subpoenaed along with officials of the village of Plymouth.

Marvin, who resigned about three weeks ago, is free under $2,500 bond. He pleaded innocent in municipal court here to a charge of embezzlement filed by Marriott following an investigation of the Plymouth discrepancy.

Announcement of the grand jury investigation followed the promise of Marriott and Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston that "immediate steps will be taken in the conservancy district shortage."

The prosecutor said "two or three other cases" will be considered.

MAGISTRATE TO BATTLE OUSTER

Ignores LaGuardia's Demand to Quit Following Racket Conviction of Hines.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Magistrate Hulon Capshaw today ignored Mayor F. H. LaGuardia's demand that he resign forthwith as an aftermath of the conviction of James J. Hines, Tammany leader, as a political "fixer" for racketeers.

Capshaw's stand left Chief Magistrate Jacob Gould Schurman, jr., with no alternative but to file formal charges with the appellate division as requested by the mayor. The mayor expressed belief that Capshaw's usefulness on the bench had been "impaired" as a result of his being linked to Hines by testimony at the trial.

Meanwhile, District Attorney Thomas Dewey who scored his most notable victory to date with the conviction of Hines, refused to discuss his enhanced political possibilities.

"I'm still busy being district attorney," he told well-wishers.

Hines, facing a possible maximum jail term of 27 years for conviction as the political protector of the Dutch Schultz numbers

FLETCHER TURNS IN RESIGNATION

Highway Maintenance Engineer Drops Plans to Fight Beightler Ouster.

Arthur Fletcher, who announced last week he would fight his dismissal as state highway maintenance superintendent in Richland county, resigned today, indicating he will not protest the dismissal.

Murray D. Shaffer, Ashland division highway engineer, said Fletcher submitted his resignation this morning without offering any explanation.

The maintenance superintendent, who was appointed two years ago under civil service, was removed Saturday by Robert S. Beightler, state highway director, after a number of charges, including malfeasance and solicitation of campaign funds, were filed against him.

Fletcher denied the accusations and announced he would take his complaint to the state civil service commission.

Arthur McMullen has been named laborer-in-charge at the maintenance office pending the appointment of a successor to Fletcher. The appointment is expected to go to James McMillen of Mifflin township, endorsed for the job by the county Republican executive committee.

Shaffer announced today that Charles Miller and Harold L. Calhoun, both of Ashland, were hired as clerks in the Ashland division office.

Two garage mechanics at Ashland were dismissed and P. A. Phillips of Nova was named to the mechanical department.

Sheffare also announced the resignation of E. R. Russell as maintenance superintendent in Huron county and the naming of Ernest Hershiser to replace him.

ROADS ICY BUT ACCIDENTS FEW

Minor Mishap Reported Here Over Week-End; February Snowfall Mounts.

Richland county over the week-end escaped without a single serious traffic accident as motorists crawled cautiously over icy highways made hazardous by a generous mixture of snow, rain and sleet that blanketed the state in one of the winter's heaviest snowstorms.

Temperatures rose today and the weatherman predicted rain for tomorrow. The mercury stood at 34 degrees at noon, as compared to Sunday's low of 17.

The forecast for the Mansfield area was increased cloudiness and warmer weather for tonight, with rain and warmer Tuesday.

The one and one-quarter inch snowfall here yesterday brought the total snowfall for the month to nine and a quarter inches, or slightly less than the 12½ inches which fell during January.

While police records were sprinkled with reports of dented fenders received from minor collisions on the ice, only one accident involving an injury was reported in Mansfield.

James Chandler, 48½ West Fourth street, reported that he suffered body bruises when struck at North Walnut and West Fourth streets at 5 p. m. yesterday by a machine driven by H. J. Sturn, R. D. 6, Mansfield.

Three persons were injured, none seriously, Sunday afternoon, four miles west of Bucyrus when two machines collided head-on.

They were William Seele, 20, Lodi, an Ohio Northern university student, and Mack Kohl, 29, and Morris Brantman, 38, both of Chi-

Williams Leaves To Take C. of C. Post At Dayton

Robert M. Miller, assistant secretary-manager of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce became acting secretary today as Paul W. Williams left to take over his duties as managing director of the Dayton Chamber of Commerce.

Williams, who has been secretary of the Mansfield chamber for the last four and a half years, submitted his resignation one month ago.

Miller was placed in temporary charge of the office by the board of directors until a new secretary-manager has been named.

Paul M. Eliot, chairman of a special committee appointed several weeks ago to select Williams' successor said today that no appointment would be announced for at least two weeks. He explained that numerous candidates had been interviewed but as yet the committee had made no selection.

Miller, a graduate of Wooster college, has been with the Mansfield chamber for the past three months as Williams' assistant.

Senate Starts Study of Bill for National Defense.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The senate began consideration of the $358,000,000 national defense bill today. Isolationists are prepared to inject into the debate attacks on President Roosevelt's foreign policy.

The bill, increasing army air corps strength to 6,000 planes, bulwarking Panama canal defense and creating a program to educate industry in the manufacture of vital war materials, represents a major part of the administration's emergency defense program.

Senate majority leader Alben W. Barkley, D., Ky., predicted that final action on the measure would be reached within two or three days.

Bricker said he would not sign the bill until he had decided on appointees for administrator of the huge insurance benefits system and three members of the review board.

Here's Easy Way to Obtain 15-Volume Encyclopedia Set at Nominal Cost

With a slogan of "Pasteurized Milk for Healthy Bodies—Good Books for Healthy Minds," the Pasteurized Milk Dealers of Mansfield today opened a campaign which has the fulfilling of the slogan as an objective.

Every family in Mansfield is invited to take part in the campaign which will make it possible for hundreds of homes to possess a reference library that will be second to none for home use, and which, ordinarily, is out of reach of the average home.

It will be possible to obtain one Volume at a time, a beautifully bound, 15-volume encyclopedia which covers 50,000 subjects and contains 5,000 illustrations, either in the regular edition or a deluxe edition.

Six Mansfield dealers who handle the pasteurized milk and who make up the association have arranged with a nationally known publishing company to supply an unlimited number of sets of the Standard American Encyclopedia. They have set up an office on the second floor of the News-Journal building.

A simple plan for obtaining this gift set has been worked out: ten caps from quart milk bottles from any of the six dealers and 49 cents—which covers the cost of transportation and handling the book—will bring you the first volume of the regular set. Ten milk caps and 69 cents will give you a volume of the deluxe edition.

The regular edition is bound in royal blue simulated leather, with gold letters, while the deluxe is beautifully bound in bright red simulated Morocco leather, overlaid with heavy gold pattern.

The 15 volumes will be a small, compact reference library in itself, suitable for growing children and adults alike. The availability of a thorough reference library in the home develops the habit of accuracy, adds interest to home work for students and is a convenience for the business and professional men and women, as well as for the club woman.

Within the pages of these 15 volumes are

Weighs Plan to Deport U. S. Aliens Supporting 'Isms'

DIES PROGRAM LISTS 3-WAY 'RED' DRIVE

Lawmaker Would Compel All Nazi, Fascist, Communist Groups to Get Permits.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Far-reaching legislation to bring Nazi, Fascist and Communist organizations under federal surveillance, bar their members or sympathizers from government jobs, and to cause mandatory deportation of their alien supporters, is being considered for introduction by Chairman Martin Dies of the house committee investigating un-American activities.

Dies has been in consultation with legislative experts and attorneys to determine if the following can be achieved by constitutional means:

1. Compulsory licensing of all organizations preaching racial, religious or class intolerance, or advocating change to another form of government; retention of a license to be conditioned upon regular reports to the state department setting forth objectives, names of all officers and members, and all sources of revenue.

Barred From Jobs.

2. Prohibiting appointment of an official of the government, or the hiring of an employe by the government, who preaches, advocates or is a member of an organization preaching or advocating racial, religious or class intolerance, or change to another form of government.

3. Mandatory deportation of any alien advocating racial, religious or class intolerance, or sedition.

In addition to the above proposals, Dies was represented as in the process of drafting letters to the heads of the major patriotic, service and labor organizations, including the American Legion, the American Federation of Labor, the CIO, The Daughters of the American Revolution, the Knights of Columbus, and others, to obtain their recommendations and advice.

Dies confined to his bed at home recuperating from an appendectomy, has told members who have visited him that the chief problem in drafting the legislation is to make sure that the proposed laws do not violate Democratic principles or the constitution.

He expressed doubt that several bills pending in congress to prevent uniformed drilling and similar activities, would achieve the results expected.

U. S. SINGERS ANSWER GIGLI

'Sour Grapes' Says American Tenor of Italian Singer's Blast at U. S. Opera.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Remarks critical of the Metropolitan Opera attributed to Beniamino Gigli by some provincial Italian newspapers brought a quick reaction today from American singers.

The Italian papers quoted Gigli as saying the Metropolitan Opera, in which he appeared in New York, was in a state of decadence, partly because financial conditions forced it to open its doors to artists who were chosen "with judgment not too rigorous."

Gigli also was quoted as describing three American singers, Lawrence Tibbett, Grace Moore and Richard Crooks, as stars "who cost less and substitute notoriety created by publicity for intrinsic value."

Tibbett, in Detroit, fired back "as one publicity hunter to another, x x x I like this country and I think Gigli doesn't."

Miss Moore, in Newton, Conn., suggested Gigli was disgruntled because "he came back this year and was greeted with only a lukewarm reception."

"It sounds like sour grapes," said Frederick Jagel, American tenor. "He found too many fresh American voices to compete with. I'm going to ask that the Gigli photograph be removed from the Metropolitan gallery."

'BETTER TEACHERS' NEEDED IN U. S. EDUCATION, PREXY DECLARES

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — The profession of teaching "is not drawing better than run of the mine" candidates, Frank E. Baker, president of the State Teachers College at Milwaukee, Wis., told a sectional meeting of the American Association of School Administrators today.

"The greatest need of American public education, if it is to fulfill its function in our democracy, is better teachers," Baker said in a prepared address. "Only the best are good enough.

"Selection that is to assure better teachers must be based on personality, social intelligence, professional interest and cultural background.

"But there must be more self-selection, and this will occur only when teaching receives the social and financial recognition to which its importance in a democracy entitles it."

At a general session of the 12,000 association members in convention here, Prof. George D. Strayer of Columbia university asserted changing concepts of administration demand that school executives become students of government that they might better see education as a government enterprise.

"Only as the superintendent recognizes the unique function of education in our American democracy," he added, "will he have a sound basis for his advocacy of such legislation as will remove the administration of schools from partisan politics and place the control in the hands of those who would serve society through education."

The educators also had before them a warning against "underteaching democracy."

It came from Alex J. Stoddard, Denver superintendent of schools, who was one of six participants in a forum discussion last night on propaganda and intellectual freedom.

"The trouble with our schools is that very frequently in our desire to be fair to all the 'isms' of the world, we frequently lean over backwards—and under-teach democracy," he said.

CHANGED AGAIN

Date of Last Community Play Now Set for April 11.

For the second time the Mansfield Community Players have changed the date of the final presentation for the season, and it will now be given on April 11, according to an announcement today by Dr. Philmour Bein, president of the players.

The date was originally set for March 21, but since the dress rehearsal set for March 20, conflicted with the Institute of International Understanding, the Players selected April 4 before realizing that this date came in Holy Week.

The play to be given April 11 is "Dulcy," the George Kaufman-Marc Connelley comedy. The tentative cast has Miss Geraldine Hostettler in the title role. Miss Hostettler played the "betrayed" maid in "Night Must Fall," the Players' last offering.

Richard Grudier, who made a hit in "Three Cornered Moon" and "Your Uncle Dudley" several season's ago, is also in the cast.

BOATS COLLIDE IN HEAVY FOG OFF EAST COAST

Sinking Freighter Abandoned, Crew Goes to Other Ship Crippled by Crash.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Its forward hold flooded, the German freighter Weigand limped slowly towards port in New York today with all 32 members of the crew of the Freighter Lillian with which it collided in a dense fog 13 miles off Barnegat lightship on the New Jersey coast.

The Wiegand's pumps were working at top speed and early this morning it asked two tugs to meet it at Sandy Hook because of fear the forward bulkheads might give way completely.

Drift In Lifeboats.

The Lillian's crew was rescued after it abandoned the ship in a sinking condition. The captain and crew drifted about in two lifeboats before the Wiegand was able to pick them out with its searchlights in the thick fog.

Shortly before 7 a. m. this morning, the Lillian was still afloat, according to late reports received by Mackey radio.

Before abandoning ship, the radion operator locked his sending key to broadcast a continuous signal. Although the captain had expected the Lillian to sink quiekly, the signal was still heard early this morning. The Coast Guard Cutter Campbell reported it was alongside the Lillian still afloat near Barnegat lightship.

The story of the collision between the Lillian, an American ship operated by the Bull line, and the Wiegand, a North German Lloyd vessel, which occurred about 7 p. m. last night was told in the cryptic radio messages which crackled through the air.

Radiomarine relayed a message from the Lillian asking the Wiegand to stand by. After the Wiegand acknowledged this, the Lillian reported her crew was taking to life boats and would remain in them until the ship sank. This plan was later abandoned when the Lillian continued afloat.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Nazi, Fascist Propaganda Probe By Dies Committee Ought to Balance Books

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Now that the Dies committee has obtained fresh money with which to continue its investigation of anti-American activities it is to be hoped that the members will sink a pick into the activities and policies of Germany and Italy affecting naturalized Americans and their sons and daughters.

Both Germany and Italy make claims on the loyalty of their natives who have moved to the United States, and Italy holds that the children of immigrants, even though they were born here and never have seen Italy, remain, in some indistinct way, Italians.

* * *

By propaganda, by pressure from alien organizations these Americans may be embarrassed and intimidated. Those who live in German or Italian neighborhoods may be deterred from full exercise of their Americanism by a threat of persecution of kinsmen who remain in the old countries. The consuls are active in the affairs of these communities, and a consul need not utter a threat in plain language in order to convey a meaning.

If a man is a merchant in an Italian neighborhood, and word is passed that he is in disfavor, he may become the victim of a boycott by other members of the group afraid to deal with him lest some punishment be visited on their relatives back home. A power of intimidation exists, and if a newspaper published in Italian constantly salutes the Duce, to the express or implied discredit of the United States, the community may feel aware of suspicion and espionage.

Individuals who want to be not German-American or Italo-American but All-American cannot feel free to oppose propaganda and influence if conditions are such that they may be ostracized for their Americanism. They deserve protection from intimidation through boycott or persecution of hostages, and if such protection is not given them they cannot be blamed for going along with anti-American leaders placed among them to do the work of the Fuehrer and Duce.

* * *

The Dies committee did some very good work on the Communists last year and was accused of Red-baiting and Fascism. If now it will go into the case of the German and Italian immigrants and their children, the accusations, from the other side, will balance the book.

Not that these charges need bother a committee which has honest motives and the ability to spade up facts.

Probably such a line of inquiry would stir up the animals of the German and Italian press again, but that is a risk which must be accepted. The American people also have a stake in this situation, and the Dies committee, in asking for more money, took on an obligation to ascertain the truth.

The Nazi laws plainly lay claim to the loyalty and service of all persons of German blood everywhere. This claim is scornfully resented, of course, by most of those concerned in this country, but where a German-American settlement exists those who acknowledge the claim and constitute themselves agents of Hitlerism can inflict on genuine Americans of German blood distress which they should not have to endure.

If there was any possibility of compromise early in the game it is clearly impossible now for anyone to be an American and remain a Nazi German or a Fascist Italian.

Nazi and Fascist have openly expressed their hatred and contempt of everything that is Americanism, and it may be added with force that the detestation is mutual. This being so, organizations which in the beginning honestly sought to bind the immigrants and their children to the old countries for innocent purposes now must be disloyal to one or the other. Yet there exists as an American organization Benito Mussolini post of the Sons of Italy.

* * *

It would not be necessary to prosecute and probably no new laws would be required. The situation needs only light and air, but it will be necessary to provide protection for witnesses and informants, because Americanism among these two groups is regarded as traitorism in the Germany and Italy of today and, to some extent, in German and Italian settlements in the United States.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Good toughie part in "Each Dawn I Die," the James Cagney starrer, went to George Raft. . . . Which had Warner's own Humphrey Bogart, schooled in toughness and deserving the chance, talking about beating it for New York . . .

They're going to put hair on baby-face Bobby Breen's chest in his next directed by Bernard Vorhaus. . . . By same script treatment accorded Rough-It-Up Bob Taylor. . . . Bobby will wrestle with a snake, have three fistfights, play hob with a cutthroat gang, be hero in a forest fire—and (I guess) find time to sing a dozen ditties. . . .

Binnie Barnes is first of the movie cuties to wear that ribbon-tied coiffure (peruke) that's coming back to style. . . . In Jack Benny's "Man About Town." . . . Same picture has Edward Arnold 22 pounds lighter and looking like a threat to juveniles. . . . Well, SOME juveniles. . . . Did it by skipping meat and liquor for four months. . . .

Universal still expects Danielle Darrieux for two pictures about March—if she can settle her French contract suit. . . . First may be "Almost an Angel." . . .

* * *

Smartest thing the Ritzes ever did was to back down on that silly squabble over "The Gorilla." Story might be a dud, but it's served better comics than they are—who didn't kick either . . .

The world premiere of "Honolulu" was in Honolulu, where Critic John B. Peck summed it up neatly with: "The picture was 'Honolulu'—but it wasn't Honolulu" . . . Everybody was grateful, though, for those frequent dialogue mentions of pineapples . . .

Gene Krupa, the hot drummer in "Some Like It Hot," is Cary Grantish in looks—but not so tall. . . . Shirley Ross (in same) "gets" Bop Hope again—he being the only cinema romantic she can capture according to the script writers.

* * *

Lynn Bari ("News Is Made at Night") looks more and more like Claudette Colbert . . . Joseph Pasternak, the producer, has his own way—and successful—of getting scripts to fit his personalities . . . His little Gloria Jean, 10-year-old singer from Scranton, Pa., is spending time as house guest of the Grover Joneses, during which scribbling Grover will observe and write her into I. A. R. Wylie's yarn, "The Under-Pup." . . . Pasternak has Scribes Bruce Manning and Felix Jackson close to Deanna Durbin, too, to catch her typical expressions and mannerisms — so that the screen Deanna can be an adaptation of the real Deanna . . .

Metro, with more stars than it has pictures to put them in, is always fishing in the Hollywood seas—with actors like George Murphy for bait . . . Murphy (in "Risky Business") hasn't made a Metro movie in 18 months, but has been loaned to 20th Century-Fox and Universal twice each . . . If one of the loan-out pictures lures a box-office "bite," Metro will haul in its line, use Murphy as bait for one of its own productions . . . Cashed in on Hedy Lamarr that way, but if they don't get out a picture soon they'll have to lend her out again. . . . Her "New York Cinderella" is shelved—for all sorts of reasons they'll tell you . . . But from this corner, with synopsis of story at hand, the real reason looks like a case of smell-failure . . . They made the picture before they smelled it!

Informally Speaking...

Monday, February 27.

Lucy, dear:

Here it is nearly the first of March, and old King Winter is still very much with us. We had quite a blizzard the other night, and most of us hoped that it would be the snow storm to end all snow storms for the remainder of the season . . . but Saturday night brought us another, so I guess we'd better not count on spring until we see the flowers blooming once again.

* * *

YOU KNOW, Lucy, it's those lucky persons like Kit Sturges and Mary Lib (Mrs. B. B.) Drummond who make the rest of us so unhappy with the cold winter weather. Not only have they been enjoying the warm southern breezes of Florida for the past six weeks, but they've just returned with the most becoming and enviable suntans ever. The girls drove down to Orlando—where they visited at Mary Lib's home. And they say they had a grand time swimming, golfing and basking in the warm sunshine.

* * *

Wednesday will be a busy day for Dick Olin (who's a senior at Kenyon college this year). That night the Kenyon Dramatics club is presenting a play entitled "The Wolves" by Romain Rolland, and Dick is a member of the cast. . . . Speaking of the Olin family, Dick's sister, Janet, spent last week-end in Cincinnati. She and Ben Kochenderfer went down there—where they visited with Chubby (Cooch) Waddell . . . I'm sure you remember Chubby . . . she lived here in Mansfield for some time a year or two ago.

* * *

AND speaking of college students (especially Kenyon college students) LeRoy Wittemire, jr.—who attended Kenyon college after his graduation from Mansfield Senior high school—is now enrolled in the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce at the University of Pennsylvania. At the close of the annual fraternity "rushing season" on the university campus, LeRoy accepted an invitation to membership in the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

* * *

YOU ASKED about Peggy Yauger—her whereabout and activities in your last letter . . . so I had a chat with her sister, Dorothy, and can tell you now. Peg was married last fall to Dr. Michael Holmes—who's a captain in the army at Ft. Moultrie (located in Charleston, S. C. where the Holmes make their home). Peg says she can't seem to find much time for housework as she and her husband are always horseback riding, dancing and fishing—the latter is their favorite sport and they have a small boat of their own. They're planning to come north soon because Mike is going to Chicago (where he'll take some more courses of study) and Peggy hopes to stop off here to visit with her sister, Dorothy.

* * *

Florida was the keynote of a bridge party which Mrs. Garland Boals gave recently. Mrs. Boals had just returned from a six-months sojourn down in the southern state . . . and she brought back some unusual tallies with her for the party. Each one had a typical Florida scene on the front—an actual, hand-tinted photograph of some pictorial spot in the south . . . and for the prize, Mrs. Boals gave a dozen of the pretty tallies.

* * *

THERE were nearly 300 persons at the annual musical tea sponsored by the Mansfield Business and Professional Women's club yesterday afternoon in the ball room at the Leland hotel . . . and any number of lucky ladies were wearing orchids. Thelma (Teddy) Reed looked especially lovely in a floor length afternoon frock in a deep plum shade with a shirred girdle in a contrasting color.

* * *

That seems to be just about all the news around these parts for today, Lucy, so I'll close and write again next week.

Lovingly,

Marianne

Move To Tax Unwed Women

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

What do you think of a law taxing girls for being unmarried at the age of 25? To the majority of femmes such a law would add insult to injury!

But according to Senorita Olga Dantas, only woman to accompany the Brazilian delegation to Washington, that will be the next law on the Brazilian statute books. If such a decree were even suggested in this country, the feminine half of the population would take to picketing.

"What, tax us for being unmarried?" you could hear them gasp from Maine to California, "when I've spent a fortune on clothes and cosmetics, taken dancing lessons, learned to cook, been up-to-date or old-fashioned according to specifications, acquired personality, consulted crystal gazers, been athletic, hiked for miles when my soul yearned for a chair to sit on and ease my aching feet. I've done everything to nail a man, and now I'm taxed for being single!"

Brazilian bachelors are to be taxed along with the girls if, by the time they have reached twenty-five, they have not marched down the aisle. But this tax should change all ideas of bachelorhood, having the effect of throwing the girls and boys at each other's heads.

State Senator H. J. Lovelace of Tennessee does not see eye to eye with Brazil. He is planning to introduce a bill in the Nashville legislature, putting an annual tax of $1,000 on bachelors, the money to go into a fund for the pensioning of old maids.

At the state capital of Tennessee, there is little hope of gubernatorial backing for the bill, as both Governor Prentiss Copper and Blan Maxwell, senate speaker, are bachelors. Nevertheless, State Senator Lovelace may look forward to a long political life. Women now have the vote, and every woman in Tennessee, it's safe to say, will drop a ballot for Senator Lovelace. The feeling that his heart is in the right place is so general.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Feb. 28.

A LIVELY and interesting day is the augury based on the predominant planetary forces in operation. There may be sudden, surprising and intriguing situations, in which good judgment and drastic action seem imperative if mistakes are to be sidestepped and dangers avoided. Be cautious and circumspect in all doubtful circumstances. Keep alert to subtle and vague matters, but use diplomacy and tact to get over treacherous places. The intimate or emotional relations may be troublesome if not discreetly managed.

Those whose birthday it is may expect an eventful, interesting and happy year if they will use discretion, diplomacy and caution in handling some anxious moments that may be caused by hidden, vague or tricky situations. Weigh every proposition with shrewdness and awareness as to ulterior motives, plots, schemes and intrigues. Intimate affairs should bring happiness.

A child born on this day, although gracious, friendly and likeable, may have depths of character elusive and difficult to analyze. With proper direction and an effort at emotional balance, it may have many worthwhile talents of a creative nature.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

WHAT DID that lonely, frightened, little lad who later became the great Philip Veritzen say in answer to the query put to him by his uncle, the king?

"I never have seen such haunted eyes in any face before or since that time," he said. "I did not know why at the time, of course, but later I knew that before me, knowing I would not understand, he had slipped the mask which he was compelled to draw over his remorseful grief and horror at the tragedy which his stern edict to my father had caused.

"That he had no affection for me, I sensed also, as I did, without understanding why, his fierce resentment against me. To him, I know now, I was not only a problem for the solving of which all the rest of his life must be devoted, but also was the cause of the tragedy. I learned, long afterward, that if my mother had been willing to give me up, and accept the usual status of a commoner loved by royalty, she and my father could have kept up their association in secret. But my mother would not send me away, accept such status, and my father would not deny her decision.

"But the king's honor, his sense of justice, his promise to his brother—all these impelled him to kindness toward me, a formal, forced kindness, it is true, but something that never failed me in all the years of our association.

"I could not have put any of these things into words at that time," Philip Veritzen's deep voice went on, "but I felt them, as I felt something else, that I must answer this man truthfully, no matter at what cost to myself.

"So I threw back my shoulders and my head as my mother had taught me to do when my father spoke to me, and looking straight into his eyes, I answered quietly:

"'Yes, sire. I know that you are the king of Transvania.'

"His eyebrows contracted involuntarily. Then he changed the frown to a wintry smile.

"'That is the right answer,' he said. 'But,' and his voice was stern again, 'who else am I? Do you know? But I see that you do. Answer me!'

"I could no more have withstood him than I could the heavy surf of the sea. I closed my eyes for an instant in an unconscious marshaling of my fortitude—I had no idea what fate my answer might bring to me—and then I opened them and looked directly up into his eyes.

"'I think you are my uncle, sire, my father's brother. I am your nephew, though, by—by—' I tried to recall the words I had heard from my mother, and of whose meaning I had no conception. 'By bar sinister,' I concluded.

"The king shot a sudden, keen look at me.

"'Do you know what those words mean?' he asked.

"'No, sire,' I replied.

"'Then see that you forget them, and never speak of them again after you have left this room today,' he said, and I drew my first free breath. Evidently I was not to be slain, as my nurse had predicted.

"'Yes, sire,' I said meekly, and then for a long half-minute he eyed me steadily.

"'How do you know that I am your uncle, and where did you hear those words you used just now?' he asked sharply at last.

"'I heard my father and mother talking in their bedroom, night before last,' I told him, biting my lips to keep them from quivering. I had a vague, unchildish sense that it would disgrace not only me but my mother's training if I showed any emotion.

"The king's face changed and became kinder.

"'I am sorry to ask you this,' he said, 'but after you leave this room, we will never have to speak of it again. Will you repeat that conversation to me, just as you heard it? I would not ask you, if it were not necessary.'"

Don't rub lard into flour with your hands when making pastry. Use a silver fork, which divides and mixes very quickly. This is easier than chopping lard in and saves using a chopping tray.

Emphasizes Need of Exercise

By MME. QUI VIVE

Strong muscles in the midsection will form a natural corset, will keep fat cells off the premises. If women would eat properly, not indulge in much sweets, fats and starches—of which most of us get too much—and if they would exercise daily the "stylish stout' departments would close up, figures would be normal. But the average woman doesn't exercise, doesn't want to. All right then, let her watch the reports of the bath room scales climb up, year after year. That is her punishment.

It is when the interlacing fibers from the ribs down into the hips and thighs lose resiliency like worn out rubber bands that the waist thickens and the hips carry on a policy of expansion.

* * *

Do your bending exercises morning and night no matter what your weight or proportions. Morning exercises give you wim and wigor for the day's job. At night they produce a pleasant fiber fatigue that brings restful sleep. Rotate at the waistline. Place your hands on your hips, turn the upper portion of your body from side to side. If you aren't accustomed to a workout you may feel a soreness afterwards.

Unless you have a planned program you won't get anywhere. Every day has so many interruptions, so many unexpected tasks that it is easy to neglect one's physical education. If necessary, get up fifteen minutes earlier. Begin with deep breathing, then do waistline pivoting. Into the bath or under the shower. You'll feel grand.

* * *

Don't look upon exercise as tiresome or tedious. If you do you'll never get at it. Regard it as play, which it is.

If the thought of calesthenics sickens your soul, as happens with some women, take a long walk each day. Step briskly, breathe deeply and regularly with the steps. Let the arms swing naturally. Keep the chest up, the tummy flat. The practice of holding the abdominal muscles tight will do more for the cultivation of a charming silhouette than anything else. And the meal bag figure will never come to torment you when you look in a full length mirror.

My Neighbor Says:

If you would keep flowers fresh when you receive them from the florist, put them in the ice box for an hour or two, or until you need them for your centerpiece. It is a good idea, if practiable, to keep them in the ice box overnight.

The right place for the bed, many people seem to think, is against the wall, where it will be fairly well out of the way of the occupants of the room in the daytime. The right place for the bed is always away from the wall, so that there may be free circulation of air all around the sleeper.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

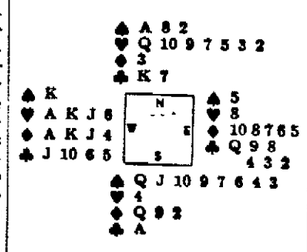
By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DENIALS OF STRENGTH

ORDINARILY A BID shows a certain amount of high card strength, but some in certain situations advertise the contrary, weakness. That is the case with original pre-emptive bids, with high jumps on a fairly early round of bidding, and with almost any kind of bid when the call which reaches you is doubled by either your side or the opposition. The taking out of the double carries the natural meaning that you think your side will be better off in some other declaration.

Let us hope that when you make such calls your partner will know you are not proclaiming great defensive strength, or even any at all.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

When South started the bidding on this duplicate deal with 4-Spades, West doubled and North redoubled. East cut in with 5-Clubs, which was passed to North, who bid 5-Hearts. South shifted that to 5-Spades, which West doubled and North redoubled. East passed this to see if his partner wanted to let it stand, or go to 6-Clubs, but West decided to pass.

West got bottom score on the deal, because of his combination of leaving in the redouble and making a lead which gave South an overtrick. He led the club J to the A. South then dropped the trump K on his lead to the Spade A, discarded his only heart on the Club K, then gave up a diamond and later ruffed his other two diamonds.

In the East-West argument that ensued, based on the fact that 6-Clubs would have been set only one or two tricks, West tried to tell East he should have taken out the redouble, when he knew his hand was so weak defensively. East retorted that he had already done that by taking out the 4-Spade redouble, and that it was up to West to either take out the one at the five level or else set the contract single-handed.

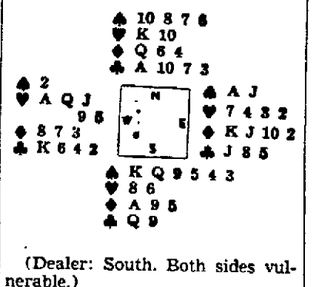
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

What is the best match-point duplicate bidding of this deal?

Lenten Dishes Offered Today

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

HERE ARE more dishes selected with an eye to the Lenten season.

Salmon Loaf is the starter, as delicious a dish as we have tasted in many a moon! It requires a pound can of salmon, six teaspoons prepared mustard, two cups bread crumbs, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, three tablespoons butter, two eggs, teaspoon paprika, one-fourth cup grated American cheese, teaspoon salt, one cup milk. Flake salmon and combine with crumbs and seasonings. Add cheese and milk, and when thoroughly blended, add slightly beaten eggs. Then add two tablespoons melted butter. Place in well-greased loaf pan, dot with remaining butter, sprinkle with paprika and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) for 30 minutes.

Lent is an ideal time to perfect your hand at making a perfect souffle. Here are two favorites. Cheese Souffle, nice for lunch or supper, requires three tablespoons quick cooking tapioca, one-half teaspoon dry mustard, three egg yolks, three whites, three-fourths cup grated cheese, one cup scalded milk and one teaspoon salt. Cook tapioca in milk for 10 minutes. Add cheese and salt and stir until blended. Add egg yolks and mustard. Fold in egg whites stiffly beaten and pour into greased muffin pans. Bake in (350° F.) oven for 20 minutes. This yields about eight portions.

Corn Souffle.

Corn Souffle is next, a dish that is both nourishing and flavorsome. Use one can whole kernel corn, one-eighth teaspoon each pepper and dry mustard, one tablespoon butter, two eggs, one cup milk, teaspoon salt, two tablespoons flour and one-half teaspoon chili powder to serve six. Melt the butter, add flour, then add milk. Pour a small amount of the mixture over egg yolks, then add to first mixture, stirring constantly. Cook for a few minutes then add corn. Fold in well beaten egg whites. Pour into a buttered baking dish and cook in a pan of hot water in a (325° F.) oven for an hour.

Sauted Green Peppers belong to the ancient order of satisfying and hearty vegetable dishes. One hostess serves it at her Sunday night suppers, and it is swell for luncheon, too. Recipe requires 12 large green peppers, two tablespoons butter, one pint consomme, four chopped shallots, three sprigs parsley, teaspoon paprika, one hard-boiled egg, salt and toast. Plunge the peppers into hot boiling fat and rub off skin. Then cut them in half and take out seeds, cutting away the ribs. Let peppers saute 10 minutes in butter. Moisten with the consomme, season with salt, shallots, parsley and paprika and let cook slowly for 30 minutes. Serve on toast slices, garnished with cooked egg.

TODAY'S FASHION

Headed for spring.

* * *

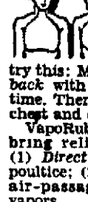
By VERA WINSTON

THE LAVENDER and purple shades continue to dominate the color card, although there will be emphasis on other colors, too, come spring. The delicate lavender tones lend themselves beautifully to spring fashions, so there is much to admire for this suit of lavender tweed. It features the long jacket introduced by the most important designers in Paris. The natural waistline is marked by a self belt with leather buckle. Breast and hip yokes are treated with rows of stitching as are the revers, the borders and the collar. A vertical row of stitching is used down the center of the skirt which is straight in cut. Four tiny flap pockets are inserted at breast and hip.

This is the way to keep rice hot. After it has boiled, drain, rinse in warm water and return to a kettle. Cover with cloth and set kettle in pan of hot water over low heat. The rice will continue to swell and keep hot and flaky for ten minutes. You can keep macaroni or spaghetti hot this same way.

Here is a new and appetite whetting thought for the starter course. Zip up tomato catsup with lemon juice, horseradish, Worcestershire sauce and celery salt, and serve it over well chilled canned Hawaiian pineapple gems. The combination is as good as it is unusual.

How To Relieve Misery of Your CHEST COLD



If you are suffering from a miserable chest cold, try this: Massage throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. Then spread a thick layer on chest and cover with warmed cloth.

VapoRub goes right to work to bring relief—two ways at once. (1) Direct through the skin like a poultice; (2) Direct to the irritated air-passages with its medicated vapors.

This poultice-vapor action loosens phlegm—clears air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion.

Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

How To Live Happily Ever After

At What Age Should I Marry?

This is the second of 12 articles in which experts give their answers to some of the questions asked most frequently by people contemplating marriage.

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW

(AP Feature Service Writer

If you're one of the many individuals who married in your early 20's, you have the blessing of Dr. Beatrice Hinkle, New York psychiatrist.

Dr. Hinkle is convinced early marriages work out better than late ones. The early 30's are late, she says; the 40's much too late.

Too Many Set Habits.

After making that clear, Dr. Hinkle, who established the first psycho-therapeutic clinic in America—at Cornell Medical college—settled down to say why.

"Early Marriages Work Out Better Than Late Ones"

First off, youth adapts itself to things more easily, it's more flexible. It doesn't have so many set habits to break, either. Next, first babies are born more easily, and have greater chances of survival if their parents are under 30.

Youth may be more romantic, but all to the good, says Dr. Hinkle. It takes plenty of romance and lots of love to pull a couple through some of the difficulties lying in wait.

She is sure that the trouble with late marriages is caused largely by too much mental application. The woman in her 30's decides she really should get married before it is too late, analyzes the qualities of a prospective husband, then decides their two personalities won't clash.

What she's really doing, says Dr. Hinkle, is rationalizing, not reasoning. She makes her decision first, and turns her arguments around to fit the answer.

Watch for Biology.

In the case of the rare individual who can think straight without rationalizing, biology is likely to trip up the reasoning. Physical urgencies, says the psychiatrist, can cause lots more trouble than an over-dose of romantic haze.

The person who aggravates Dr. Hinkle more than any other is the individual who believes he should marry a person of identical personality, thinking he has a better basis for understanding.

On the contrary, the natural "attraction of opposites" works out far better, for each person is able to draw from the other qualities he does not himself possess. A strong, silent man and a strong, silen woman make a pretty bad team, says Dr. Hinkle. Neither can get enthusiasm and exuberance from the other.

Young people don't worry so much about dissecting their prospective partner's nature down to the last nerve impulse. If opposites attract, they don't worry about it. And they get along much better.

How about marrying your first love? Dr. Hinkle wouldn't generalize, but she thinks it often is the best thing. There certainly should be no rule discouraging such a marriage.

The Homing Creature.

Asked if men who married in their early 20's were not likely to outgrow their wives, Dr. Hinkle replied:

"They are just as likely to outgrow them if they marry later on. Perhaps the man who marries young will be struck by passing fancies at a younger age than the man who marries after 30. But no man is going through life without a few looks away from his home. He's bound to find his wife boring some time or other. Marrying age doesn't make any difference.

"And here," she added, "is where some more wishful thinking comes in. The temporary attraction of the married man imagines she's in love with him, and thinks 'Ah, this is a great love.' She must save him from marital unhappiness. Why can't she pick on all the single men around? But no. She must try to snatch a husband from his wife."

In comfort to the wife in the case, Dr. Hinkle added, "But man is by nature a homing creature. He's pretty likely to come back."

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Lucas, Butler Carry County Banner In District Play

Random Shots

Donna Schuster's 248, 628 Constitute New Records in Women's Bowling League; Tygers Open Defense of District Court Title This Week.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

LAST week was a quiet week for yours truly, who was on a diet of pills and medicine. But not so on the Mansfield sports stage. Firing was heavy all along the line, according to the reports compiled by Chuck Martin. One of the top feats of the past week was sprung by Donna Schuster. Her 628 total in the Women's bowling league constitutes a new season record, we understand. That 248 game with which she concluded her series was one of the most remarkable totals ever shot by a feminine kegler in the city. . . . Another neat bit of bowling was turned out by young Freddy Willis, who collected a 739, his second 700 of the season. Art Hilborn also rolled out a 700 —a 707—but Art and 700 series are not exactly strangers.

* * * * *

The uncertainty of tournament play was again proven in last week's county elimination. Lucas was crowned the champion, with Butler the runner-up. These two clubs will find their opposition tougher in the district affair in Carey this week-end, but both may go high. Tom Greulich and Bob Crawford make Lucas dangerous, and Butler should be tougher with the return of Kenny Miller and Jack Wilson, who were on the sich list last week. Perhaps the biggest surprise of the county tournament was Bellville's victory over Ontario in a second round game. But Coach Hodge's men were the most improved team in the tournament. A good ball handling team. Bellville might have gone higher in the elimination had it been able to connect with the basket more frequently. And one of the finest individual performances of the tournament was given by Dave Grubb of Butler in the semi-final game against Shiloh. Grubb is only a sophomore. He joined the team only a few weeks ago on his return from the west coast.

* * * * *

Bellevue Already Conceded Cage Crown.

WHAT happens on the junior high school court over in Sandusky this week-end will be of major concern to this city's citizens. Coach Russ Murphy's Tygers put the title they won last year on the block. While Bellevue has already been conceded the tournament crown by the experts on the other end of the district, a few surprises may be sprung. Mansfield cannot be counted out of the battle until defeated. Neither can Sandusky, Fremont, Tiffin Columbian and Port Clinton.

Mansfield's first foe Friday night will be Port Clinton The Tygers face a tough assignment in their opener, and the team that wins this game is almost certain to coast to the finals. If the lower bracket play runs true to form, Bellevue will be the other finalist.

Should Mansfield take the Sailors in their inaugural, the Men of Murphy will face either Shelby or Norwalk in their Saturday game. A victory in this game would put the Tygers against either Tiffin Junior Order or Willard in the semi-finals next week.

Pro Offer Still Open to Grayson.

EDDIE BRIETZ says: That $6,000 offer to play pro football still is open to Bobby Grayson any time he wants to quit his $2,400 coaching job at Stanford and come east. . . . Jimmy Bronson, who seconded Gene Tunney in the famous "long count" fight with Dempsey in Chicago 12 years ago, will be in Al Ryll's corner in Baltimore tonight when Al goes against Dempsy's heavyweight, Bill Boyd. . . . Old Dazzy Vance says the "big show" must have a lousy scouting system or it would have signed Larry MacPhail before now.

Browns and Cardinals have signed five kids from Rogers Hornsby's baseball school. . . . Feelers have been sent Pitt, Alabama, Fordham and Carnegie Tech for a game with Oklahoma at Norman Oct. 28 or Dec. 2. Coach Tom Stidham will guarantee $15,000, maybe more. Trouble is most of the big name schools already have full schedules for 1939.

The Yanks have the inside track on Roman Roh, Creighton U.'s high scoring basketball player who also is quite a baseball chucker. . . . Patty Berg hopes to break a three-year jinx and crash through to the Florida east coast golf championship in the tourney starting tomorrow.

Mid-west fans will be you the fastest basketball in the world is played in the Missouri Valley A. A. U. league. . . . Pinehurst and the Golden Gate exposition are bidding nip and tuck for the 1939 Ryder cup matches and are raising the ante in chunks of $500 a throw.

Star Is Born?

Is Eddie Collins, jr., headed for the baseball stardom his father achieved? Eddie, jr., is captain, leading batter and outfielder of the Yale university squad. Eddie, sr., now is general manager of the Boston Red Sox.

Second No Problem For Vitt

Grimes to Play Infield Post, Says Pilot.

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Everyone seems worried about the second base problem of the Cleveland Indians except Manager Oscar Vitt.

"Second base problem? What second base problem? This kid Oscar Grimes, is our second baseman, isn't he? asserted Ol' Os' today on a hurryup visit to Cleveland before departing tonight for the Indians' spring training camp at New Orleans.

Reminded that Grimes played third base in double AA baseball last season at Milwaukee, Vitt stuck to his contention he would be a "good second baseman" in the major leagues this year.

"He's got the speed, the hands and the arms," Vitt declared. "At his age it's easy to switch to a new position if you've got the mechanical qualifications. Give him three weeks in camp with Oscar Melillo (Indian coach) and you'll be amazed at his progress."

Vitt also reminded questioners of the presence on the Indian roster of Xlas Monaco, a second-base rookie who hit .276 for Oklahoma City in the Texas league last year.

Vitt was not so confident of a solution of the tribe's other perennial headache — shortstop. He has Lyn Lary and Jimmy Webb available for the job.

Yanks Open Drills At St. Petersburg.

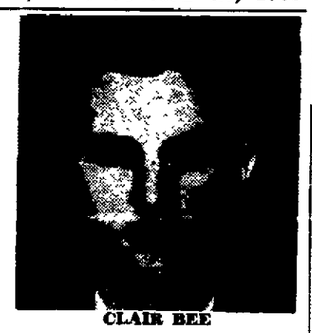
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(U.P.)—The world champion New York Yankees, who seek to become the first American league club ever to win four successive pennants, begin their 15th spring training season in St. Petersburg today.

Until Manager Joe McCarthy arrives Wednesday, Coach Art Fletcher will be in charge of the squad which includes the batterymen and several of the veterans who need a longer conditioning period such as Lou Gehrig, Jake Powell and George Selkirk.

* * *

CLEARWATER, Fla. — (U.P.) — Only three of the 40 Brooklyn Dodgers ordered to report today will be absent when regular spring training begins at Clearwater field. The club's new manager, "Lippy" Leo Durocher and the boys he had boiling out at Hot Springs, Ark., arrived at 7 a. m., and the first full practice was scheduled for 10 a. m. The three absentees were Van Mungo and Babe Phelps, who are holdouts, and Dolph Camilli, who is motoring with his family from California.

Questions And Answers About Bee And His Blackbirds



CLAIR BEE

A FORMER Mansfielder, Clair Francis Bee, basketball coach at Long Island university in Brooklyn, N. Y., is one of the most successful coaches in America. His games-won-and-lost percentage for the past five years has been .927. Bee's Blackbirds of 1939 are in the running for mythical national-championship honors. He served as an assistant to Coach J. Russell Murphy at Mansfield high school several years ago. Here is some bull-session material about Bee, the boys, and their school.

WHAT IS BEE LIKE?
Quiet; friendly; poised. He's 39; from West Virginia.

WHAT IS LIU?
A college of 1,800 students (250 co-eds) that gives courses in physical ed, business, journalism, pre-law and pre-med. It has no dormitories.

WHERE IS THE CAMPUS?
There isn't much. The school building is a former warehouse located in a crowded section of Brooklyn.

DOES THE SCHOOL HAVE UNUSUAL ATHLETIC FACILITIES?
No. Bee's team works in a "two-by-four" gymnasium. But it plays in New York's Madison Square Garden (with a capacity of 18,000 fans).

HAS BASKETBALL BEEN PROFITABLE AT LIU?
Very. When new school buildings are built, a lot of the dough will come from basketball profits.

WHY DO SO MANY GOOD BASKETBALL PLAYERS GO TO LIU?
1. Because LIU now has a big basketball name. 2. Because Bee, who runs beach resorts in the summer, can help them get summer jobs. 3. Those who enter LIU are ordinary high school players, anyway. But they get more basketball at LIU than at most colleges and develop further.

WHERE DO THE PLAYERS COME FROM?
All from within a radius of 15 miles around New York City.

WHAT IS BEE'S ATHLETIC BACKGROUND?
In high school he captained five or six teams. In college he lettered in five sports: football, basketball, baseball, tennis, wrestling. He has coached most sports, including track.

WHAT IS BEE'S SCHOLASTIC BACKGROUND?
He hold several college degrees. He attended Ohio State, Waynesburg, Rider and Rutgers, and probably a few other schools. He teaches accounting at LIU.

WHAT IS THE "THEME" OF HIS LIFE?
Keeping busy. Remember what he did in school and college. And what he is doing now—coaching baseball, football, basketball; managing summer resorts; leading basketball clinics; teaching accounting.

DOES HE HAVE ANY SPARE TIME?
Well, he manages to play a lot of golf, and to fly for pleasure often.

WHAT DOES HE LIKE?
Dogs; horses; ice cream sodas; books on business; detective stories; newspapers and news-magazines.

WHAT DOESN'T HE LIKE?
Players who fail to show "spirit", smoking.

DOES HE SCOUT RIVAL CAGE TEAMS?
Only rarely.

WHAT DOES HE THINK ABOUT THE CAGE RULES?
That they are now better than ever.

Cubs Defeat Bulldogs 35-33 in Tournament Finals; Shiloh Wins Consolation.

By CHARLES MARTIN

COACH ALFRED AXE'S towering Cubs of Lucas High and the Butler High Bulldogs carry Richland county's Class B cage hopes in the district tournament at Carey this week.

The high-scoring quintets won the right to the district meet by virtue of their victorious march to the finals of the annual county tourney staged at Mansfield Senior high last week.

Lucas climaxed its appearance at the county affair in a blaze of glory Saturday night by edging the defending champion Butler combine, 35 to 33, in a thrill-packed tussle before approximately 1,200 fans to annex the title.

Adds Winning Points.

Don Leiter, speedy guard, provided the winning points that enabled Lucas to emerge with a decision over the fighting Bulldogs

The youthful guard, who had not tallied a goal in Lucas' two previous contests, sank a mid-court shot in the fading seconds of the game to break a 33-all tie and give his team the triumph.

Mentor Bob Burgett's inspired Bulldogs, with two regulars, Kenny Miller and Jack Wilson, on the sidelines with severe colds, played spectacular ball to leave the outcome of the all-important game a toss-up until the final gun.

It was Lucas' first championship since 1928, and the club had a number of uncomfortable moments before Leiter came through with his winning basket.

Butler held a 30 to 27 lead with two minutes to go, but the battling Lucas machine come in with a pair of beneath-the-basket shots to push ahead, 31-30 with less than a minute to play.

The Burgett-coach team knotted the score at 33-all on Wendall Ward's foul conversion with 40 seconds to play, but its inability to successfully stall the remainder of the regulation game cost the club a chance of fighting it out in an overtime session.

Boals, whose brilliant long distance shooting kept Butler in the thick of the melee. set the individual tempo with 16 points, while Lawrence Franks topped Lucas with 12. Franks coralled all his markers from the center of the court.

Butler advanced to the finals by defeating Shiloh high, 33 to 27, in a nip-and-tuck semi-final affair. The clubs were deadlocked at 17-all at halftime. Lucas gained the finals with an easy 38 to 18 win over a small, but hard-working Bellville high outfit.

The Drummer Boys and Bellville met in the consolation finals with the former club finishing on top by a 33 to 27 count. Shiloh, led by Bob Moser, who won the individual scoring title in the tournament with 48 points, staged a last-period rally to topple the dangerous Bluejays. Bellville was ahead, 15 to 11, at the intermission.

Arnold Is Champion.

Jay Arnold of Shiloh won the foul shooting contest by sinking 19 out of 25 attempts in a playoff. after he tied with Melvin Warner of Lucas and Howard Noble of Shiloh with 18 apicce.

Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools, presented the trophies to the captains of the winning teams, John Oswalt, Lucas; Ward, Butler, and Moser, Shiloh. He also awarded Arnold a trophy for the free throw title.

The tournament this year was staged under the management of E. J. Joseph, superintendent of Shiloh high.

City League Teams To Play Wednesday

The weekly games in the City Class A basketball league, scheduled for tonight at Mansfield Senior high, will be played on Wednesday night, it was announced today by Vern Jones, president.

Wednesday evening's hostilities open with a meeting between the Yuncker Sports and the Elks lodge quintet, with the Westinghouse Electrics and Herrick Hi-Speeds clashing in the second tussle. The Sports and Electrics are tied for first place as the clubs race into the second night of the final round.

Ohio Retains Title Hopes

Bucks Can Win Share of Crown If Indiana Loses.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Purdue may have to hand over a piece of its Big Ten Basketball title tonight to its neighbor and athletic enemy—Indiana.

The hurtling Hoosiers, possessors of a nine-game winning streak which already includes one victory over Purdue, can clinch a share of the crown by defeating the fallen champions again and win it outright if second place Ohio State loses to Michigan.

Ohio State's present furious pace, however, indicates Indiana will have to rise or fall on its own merits. Led by Capt. Jim Hull, who regained the individual scoring lead with 27 points against Wisconsin Saturday night, Ohio State was a prohibitive favorite to defeat lowly Michigan and postpone actual settlement of the title race until the final game of the season.

Indiana has won nine and lost one to Ohio State, while the Bucks have won eight, lost two. Each has games remaining with Purdue and Michigan. Ohio State's only hope for even a share of the title is to win both its games and take a chance on Indiana's losing one.

In other games tonight, Minnesota plays at Wisconsin, Northwestern travels to Iowa and Chicago helps Illinois wind up its season at Champaign.

Kuda Willing To Bet Purse

Wants Crack at Champ Here Friday Night.

Kimon Kudo, tricky Japanese light-heavyweight contender, informed the Mansfield Quality club today that he is seeking another match with the Great Mephisto. The colorful son of Nippon has asked Matchmaker Tim Nolan to schedule the meeting for action on Friday night in the Armory.

Kudo gave Mephisto a rough evening before falling victim to the champ here recently. He claims, however, that a back injury robbed him of victory. "Mephisto, he no beat me if my back don't hurt," Kudo told Nolan brokenly. The Jap made it known that Mephisto's pile-driver, in itself, would not have been effective.

"So convinced is Kudo that he can beat Mephisto," stated Nolan today, "that he is willing to give his end of the purse to charity if he loses. I'm convinced that he really merits a return match and I'm going to write Mephisto this evening. We'll make the bout if it's humanly possible."

Should the Quality club induce Mephisto to make his third appearance here since regaining the title, he will wrestle Kudo for two falls, with a 90-minute time limit.

CHAPTER SIX

Standing before the desk at which Melvin Hardy sat, Lona felt a shiver begin to chase itself down her spine, and she checked it with an effort. She shouldn't have come here, she thought, striving to meet unconcernedly the beedy eyes that brought flooding back memories of that last trying week at Ardmore's. She should have crossed the Allison Trust from her list of possibilities the moment she recalled Hardy's connection with it.

Straightening her shoulders she waited, conscious that he was looking her over from head to foot, taking in her worn suit, her frayed gloves and battered hat with an insolent stare that made her want to turn and run.

Then he smiled and his smile was even worse than his stare.

"I'm glad to see you again," Miss Ackerman," he said, in the low-pitched, curiously well-modulated voice that was his one attraction. "Sit down," he invited.

"I was wondering what had become of you," he went on, when Lona did not answer. "Don't tell me you haven't had any work since you ah—left Ardmore's." He was examining her clothes again, and Lona felt herself flush.

"I'm afraid I haven't," she said. "And I didn't know you would be hiring here or I wouldn't have come."

The words slipped out before she realized what she was saying. At the look which sprang to his eyes she wished she could recall them.

"But my dear girl!" he exclaimed. His tone hurt. "Surely you don't think there was anything personal in my having to lay you off! I thought I explained at the time that it was only a matter of—ah—expediency. You are a very good worker, I thought you—understood." He narrowed his beady eyes.

"I understood, of course," Lona brought out. How could she help understanding, something within her longed to cry out. "But I naturally felt hurt." She groped for words. "I'd been at Ardmore's five years, and Mr. Ardmore knew—my father—"

She hesitated, and Hardy leaned forward, suddenly. "There was a letter in Ardmore's files about your father, Miss Ackerman," he said, slowly. "I read it, and I'm very sorry." He reached out and touched her hand lightly. "A thing like that is a—a tough break for a girl like you. That's why I called you in when I recognized you out there in the office. I thought, perhaps, you would allow me to help you in some way. This job, now, it's not what you had at Ardmore's, of course. Times have changed. But it's a pretty decent pay, and if you want it, I think it can be arranged."

"Suppose you wait and go to lunch with me, and we'll—talk it over."

He paused, and Lona felt a sudden bewildering flash of doubt. He really sounded friendly. Had she been wrong after all? Had she misjudged.

"Do you mean you're offering me work?" She could scarcely bring out the words. Work!

* * *

Melvin Hardy smiled then, the smooth, insinuating personal sort of smile she had always hated in him. He glanced at his watch.

"Suppose you wait and go to lunch with me, and we'll—talk it over," he proposed evenly, his beady eyes fastened on hers.

For a moment Lona just sat looking at him. The letdown after her brief instant of hope was almost too much. "I'm afraid you'll have to count me out," she managed to say finally, and got to her feet. "I—have a luncheon date."

In spite of all she could do her shoulders slumped as she turned toward the door. It was the street for her again, of course. If he had meant to be square, and give her the job, there would have been nothing to "talk over." He would have hired her without further ado.

At the door she turned and with an effort flung back her head.

"I don't think I'd care to work for you, anyhow, Mr. Hardy," she threw at him.

He was on his feet in an instant. With one quick stride he had cleared the desk and was beside her. At sight of his face she cringed and fumbled for the door.

"You little fool!" he ground out, whirling her about to face him. "Did you really think I'd have a girl like you around this office? Don't you think I know all about you? Why be so high and mighty? There's such a thing as a blacklist, you know. And a convict's daughter would certainly stand at the top of the list!"

His leering face was close to hers. He started to smile again, and Lona's anger burst all bonds.

"You filthy beast!" she cried, and shaking off his hand from her arm, she slapped him straight across his stubbly cheek.

Before the blow he recoiled, and his hand went to his face, where a fresh red welt showed. Lona saw fury leap into his eyes.

"Of all the devils—" he almost spat at her. Pulling away from him, her seeking hand found the doorknob. Flinging the door open, she went through, shutting it in his face with a satisfying bang.

* * *

For a moment she stood there, her face burning, her breath coming in angry gasps. Over the room, still filled with its quota of hopeful applicants, a hush fell. A sudden hush filled with wondering faces turned her way. Then, from over in the corner by the door, a snicker arose, and spread.

Flinging her head high, Lona edged through them and gained the corridor. With that snicker sounding in her ears she even managed a little smile.

Once outside, her shoulders slumped again, and the tears she had been holding back had their way. The dirty beast! The brute! Why hadn't she picked up something from the desk and hurled it at him? Why hadn't she beat and slapped and kicked and bit until his dirty face was a pulp . . . A convict's daughter, he had called her. Over and over that phrase rung in her ears until she could have covered them with her hands and ran, screaming, to shut out sound. A convict's daughter. Like acid the charge seemed to burn into her very soul. The cruelty of it, the terrible cruelty!

Stepping from the elevator, she almost ran from the building and struck out blindly up the street, without knowing or caring where she was going. Gone were the high head and the determination with which she had set out only an hour ago. What was the use, something within her was beginning to cry out. What was the use of further striving? There was no job for her. She was crazy to wear herself out hunting. If she did find anything it would only be temporary. Sooner or later someone would find out about her, and then—a convict's daughter.

* * *

At the first corner she paused, and pulling from her purse the list of want ads she had so carefully prepared, she tore it to bits with vicious fingers, and scattered the fragments. With dull eyes she watched the wind catch at them and send them swirling out into traffic, and a sob shook her as she turned slowly and made for the store where she had checked her suitcase.

She had an impulse to recover it, and then hunt up a railroad station, and go as far as what was left of Jim Claridge's money would take her. Perhaps somewhere, anywhere, away from this ruthless city.

Oh, but there was no use even in that. Everywhere it would be the same. No matter where she went she would still be a convict's daughter. Men were all alike.

* * *

Even Jim Claridge! He'd been good to her last night. Why had he, she cried out, in sudden revulsion. Why hadn't he left her there in the park? Nobody could have been as kind as he seemed without a purpose. She saw that now. He probably was only a little more subtle than the rest.

She recalled the white look that had flitted across his face when she had told him about—told him that she was a convict's daughter. And then he had laughed. Yes, he was as bad as the rest. Why hadn't she seen it? He had lulled her suspicions by playing fairy godfather last night. But tonight, if she met him, he, too, would be expecting his pay. They all wanted to be paid, these men! If they gave favors, they expected them back.

Well, she wouldn't see him tonight. She wouldn't give him a chance to turn nasty on her. And she wouldn't hunt for a job any more, either. She'd get her suitcase, find a boarding house somewhere, and then just sit there until her money—Jim Claridge's money, for which she wasn't going to pay, gave out. After that . . . who cared what happened after that. The park again, probably, or—there always was one way left.

THEATERS

GETTING a baby to smile for a few feet of film is a lot tougher job than directing a quartet of temperamental stars, any director will testify. Big David Butler, directing "East Side of Heaven," was completely tuckered out the other day when he tried to get an infant to smile at the camera for an instant. Bing Crosby, star of the picture, was holding the baby and singing into a microphone, and although Butler whistled and made faces and waved a doll, the baby refused to take her eyes off the microphone. It wasn't until she sighted Crosby's bow tie and tugged at it until she had untied it, that she looked full at the camera and smiled broadly and triumphantly. You'll see the "shot" when the film is released.

* * *

Gracie Shakes a Skirt.

Gracie Allen doing a hulu dance is a highlight of "Honolulu" and while she doesn't do it as well as Eleanor Powell, Gracie has her points. Miss Powell embellishes the picture with some grade-A stepping, and there's an interesting romance between the dancing star and Robert Young, whose dual roles keep the remainder of the cast pretty well confused until the final fade-out. The picture will be the Ohio attraction throughout the week.

* * *

Glorify Girl Pilots.

Containing some excellent flying sequences and portraying for the first time on the screen, the lives, ambitions and trials of the every-day girl pilots, "Tail Spin" is a pleasing piece of screen entertainment. It has four well known feminine players as pilots —Alice Faye, Constance Bennett, Nancy Kelly and Joan Davis—and pictures the famous Bendix Trophy race from Los Angeles to Cleveland. The Madison will hold this feature through Tuesday.

* * *

Grasps Opportunity.

Perhaps the management of the Majestic theater had "inside dope" on the Academy awards, for not only did it show "Jezebel" on the heels of the announcement that its star, Bette Davis, had won an award, but now announces the picture that won the award as the "best motion picture of 1938" as its mid-week attraction. "You Can't Take It With You" opens there Tuesday with a cast of stars from here to you. The second picture is "Merrily We Live" with Constance Bennett and Brian Aherne.

* * *

Wallace Beery and Mickey Rooney, both veterans of the screen, are united for the first time in the race track drama, "Stablemates," at the Ritz. They are natural "acting affinities," just as Beery and Jackie Cooper once were, and their first picture combines heart throbs, human interest, comedy and dramatic action. The attempt of a nagging first wife to hold her husband against his second wife is portrayed in "Woman Against Woman."

* * *

Modern Legend.

Two unusually attractive pictures make up the current Park bill. Besides the Ginger Rogers-Fred Astaire music-and-dance romance, the theater is showing "The Lady Vanishes," which is based on a favorite "modern legend," often told by Alexander Woolcott, of the beauty who disappeared from her hotel room in Paris. Margaret Lockwood, Michael Redgrave, Paul Lukas and Dame May Whitty have the major roles.

MINUS SIGNS SLOW TRADE IN STOCK MARKET

Selling on Last Week's Run-up Handicaps Exchange; Spring Trends Watched.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Profit taking on last week's run-up handicapped the stock market today and leading issues generally slipped behind fractional minus signs.

Recovery proponents, however, were encouraged by the fact dealings slowed appreciably on the moderate set-back.

Lagging were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, American Telephone, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Sperry, Union Carbide and Eastman Kodak.

Resistant were Johns-Manville, Sears Roebuck, Consolidated Edison, Westinghouse, Bendix and N. Y. Central.

The government business peace campaign continued as a buoying market influence, brokers said, but spring trade trends were still a bit obscure and many in Wall Street seemingly were content to await signs of a definite response to the administration's go-ahead signal.

Bonds were selectively improved and commodities narrow. European markets pointed upward.

Market analysts noted the survey of the magazine Steel which said spotty demand and strict adherence of consumers to close-range buying tend to detract somewhat from continued expectations of further expansion in steel business during coming weeks.

HAIL CAVES IN HOSPITAL ROOF

Freak Storm Smashes Windows, Power Lines In New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(INS)—A freak storm that struck without warning shortly after midnight today left scores of windows smashed by huge hail stones and numerous power lines broken by the heavy wind.

MAGISTRATE TO BATTLE OUSTER

racket, was in seclusion. His faithful wife who was at his side constantly during the courtroom ordeal collapsed late Saturday when the "blue ribbon" jury returned its verdict.

"You can say for him that this is only the first round," said Eugene, the youngest of the three stalwart Hines sons after a brief visit with his father. "We lost it, but we're just beginning to fight. My father isn't worried about anything except to cheer up mother who has taken it so hard."

Several of the jurors said they felt sorry for Hines but could not do otherwise than they did under the law.

"I would have been happy to have seen Jimmy Hines go back to his wife and family a free man but it was not to be," said David Jeidell, juror No. 6. "The facts were there and the corroborative evidence was there and there was nothing else to do but vote the way we did."

A few hours after Mayor LaGuardia demanded Capshaw's retirement, the magistrate issued a lengthy statement saying he had always welcomed an inquiry by the appellate division but for various reasons found it inadvisable to request one himself.

During the trial, Capshaw changed his previous version of the settlement of a numbers case on cross-examination. He also was accused of being under the influence of Hines in acting on cases of arrested Dutch Schultz racketeers.

Meanwhile, the illness of Justice Ferdinand Pecora was believed to indicate a postponement of the sentencing of J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, the lawyer for the Dutch Schultz gang, and Harry Schoenhaus, the accountant. Both pleaded guilty at the first trial of Hines which was ended in a mistrial because of a remark made by Dewey.

Seven speakers, including State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson and J. R. Thomas, president of the Ohio township trustees and clerks, are scheduled to talk Thursday at the 16th annual Richland county road meeting in the First M. E. church, Mansfield.

Others who will discuss problems of local and state government at the session for township and county officials are O. P. Van Schoik, state relief examiner; Ralph C. Lutz, Richland county representative to the general assembly; Prosecutor G. W. Marriott; County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, and C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of county commissioners.

The meeting will be in charge of County Engineer Howard C. Sword. John Selby, president of the county trustees' and clerks' association, will conduct a round table discussion of township and county road problems.

While the meeting is chiefly for the purpose of bringing township and county officials together to discuss their plans for highway maintenance and construction plans for the year, legislative, finance and relief problems will be considered by the group.

Opening at 10 a. m., the meeting will be followed by a luncheon in the church basement. Preceding the talks, a motion picture entitled "Stabilization of Secondary Roads" will be shown under the direction of the county engineer.

Strange Incidents In Slain Dancer's Life Under Study

LOS ANGELES—(U.P.)—Strange incidents in the life of blond Anya Sosoyeva, beautiful dramatics student, dancer and movie extra, were explored today by detectives frankly mystified by her brutal murder on City College campus Friday night.

Of the scores of theories suggested they were concentrating on but three—that she was the victom of a jealous suitor, a degenerate or a colored man who had been frequenting the campus after dark frightening other girl students with his advances.

The only tangible clues found so far in the attack-murder were a pair of blood-stained men's suede gloves and a section of green-painted two-by-four board, also blood stained, both of which were picked up beneath shrubbery where she was attacked.

County Autopsy Surgeon Frank R. Webb said he had determined that the dancer had not been criminally assaulted as hospital physicians previously had reported.

Several known and suspected degenerates had been questioned and others were sought.

Holds Roosevelt Chance To Win In "40" Very Slight

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—President Roosevelt, if he decides to run again, "has very little chance of being re-elected" in 1940, and no other New Deal candidate could possibly win, Fortune Magazine asserted today.

In its latest survey, published in its March issue, Fortune added that "only slightly more than a third of the American people say now that they would vote for Mr. Roosevelt if he is a candidate next year."

But certain as they are on these points, the voters have not made up their minds as to what candidate they would support, the magazine said, explaining that according to the survey 70.5 per cent are still undecided as to who Mr. Roosevelt's successor should be."

Examiner Makes Check.

State Examiner Irving Young was conducting an investigation of the Conservancy district accounts today at County Treasurer John E. Kolb's office. Young said he had no idea of how long it would require to go over the involved accounts.

Kolb announced the conservancy tax office in the basement of the courthouse would be closed indefinitely, or until "we have the records in better condition."

The treasurer added that the conservancy tax collection, which opened last Monday, will be halted until the office is re-opened. He said he was undecided about a successor to Erdenberger.

The tax accounts shortage was revealed last week when tax statements were mailed for the first time under a new state law. A number of property owners protested when they were billed for delinquent taxes they said had already been paid.

FRANCO GIVEN RECOGNITION

Britain and France Decide to Recognize Insurgent Rule; War's End Speeded.

decided to inform Gen. Franco of their decision to recognize his government as the government of Spain. Formal action has been taken in this sense today."

Prior to his statement on Spain, Chamberlain said he believed "permanent" peace can be achieved only by a world conference on armaments limitation and removal of trade barriers.

With regard to the disintegration of the republican regime in Spain, Chamberlain said, "It seemed to his majesty's government impossible to regard the Spanish republican government as the sovereign government of Spain."

"I understand the French government also is announcing its decision today," Chamberlain added. He said that included in Republican Spain are some of the most important industrial centers of the country.

No Doubt On Outcome.

"Even if the Republican forces in the south should continue to make some show of resistance," he declared, "there could be no doubt of the ultimate issue."

"His majesty's government," the prime minister continued, "has noted with satisfaction the public statement of Gen. Franco concerning the determination of his government to secure the traditional independence of Spain and take proceedings in the case of those against criminal charges were laid."

Chamberlain was interrupted by Maj. Clement R. Attlee, labor leader, who asked him on what date the government reached its decision. Attlee reminded Chamberlain that his response to Attlees' question last Thursday whether the government had reached any decision was that he was not in a position to add to his previous statements on the question.

"I think my position is perfectly simple," Chamberlain replied, adding that the government had decided to leave in the hands of Viscount Halifax, foreign minister, the final decision on recognition and that the decision was taken over the week-end.

Oen Debate Tomorrow.

He announced there would be debate on the question of recognition in the house of common tomorrow.

When he was again interrupted by Attlee, Chamberlain retorted icily:

"I am not going to be cross-examined about hours and moments without having notice."

Chamberlain's rely caused an uproar from the opposition benches. William Gallacher, communist, shouted:

"You should be impeached. You are a traitor to Britain."

Chamberlain was interrupted continually by Attlee, who accused him of misleading the house by refusing to answer his question last Thursday, "which enabled him to get away without debate last week."

Chamberlain defended himself against the charge of misleading the house.

"If an effective decision had been taken," he declared, "I would have said so. In fact, it had not been taken."

The only remaining requirement for Franco to become absolute master of Spain would be to carry out the single provision of the armistice said to have been reached Saturday.

That condition, Spanish republican sources said, was that the nationalist generalissimo allow enough time to the French and British to remove republican leaders from the last quarter of Spain.

10,000 Go To France.

It was expected to take several days for the 10,000 persons said to have chosen exile to Franco's clemency to be brought to France aboard foreign ships.

When that is done the Spanish war will have run its course. Spain will have changed her form of government at a cost of more than 1,000,000 lives and devastation of half of the country. It is estimated that at least one generation will be occupied by reconstruction.

A war which has constantly threatened to spill over into the rest of Europe will have ended but the question of which way Franco will lean in the democratic-fascist choosing of sides in Europe still may trouble France and Britain.

Theirs was a problem of countering the assistance Italy and Germany have given the nationalists.

No Aches or Pains Now as Local Lady Praises Vendol

Bellville Farmer's Wife Says Back and Legs Were Once a Mass of Misery. Gives Praise to Vendol for Relief of These Troubles Due to Constipation.

MRS. MARION YOUNG

When you suffer from constipation which permits food waste to clog you up and upset your stomach, many symptoms are apt to follow and among these may be aches and pains popularly spoken of as rheumatism. If this has happened to you who read this, a visit to the Vendol Man at Central Drug Store will prove well worth your while, because Vendol may be able to help you just as it did Mrs. Marion Young of Route 1, Bellville, Ohio, near Mansfield, who tells about it as follows:

"For a long time I had suffered from constipation, and lately everything seemed to go wrong. My appetite disappeared, yet the lightest meal would distress me with indigestion, gas, acid-risings, heartburn and shortness of breath; I had no strength or energy, yet couldn't sleep soundly at night because of nervousness and such frequent night-rising; headaches, dizziness, and spots before the eyes became almost constant companions, and what was worse, I could get no relief from the aching misery in my back and legs.

"I decided to try some Vendol as I knew a number of people who had taken it and liked it, and in a short time it was acting on my bowels the finest kind of way, giving natural and thorough action, then my appetite picked up so I enjoyed everything with no gas, bloating, acid risings, or indigestion. I never have an ache or pain in my back of legs now, and that lets me enjoy restful sleep every night. Is there any wonder that I am glad to recommend this splendid Vendol medicine to others?"

Vendol has helped many people right here in this city and nearby towns, so why not give it a chance to help you, too? Come to Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., ask for the Vendol Man, and learn all about it. Most all leading druggists sell it.—Adv.

NAZI FINANCIAL ACUMEN SHOWN IN GUATEMALA

Artificial Device Gives Germany Sure Market, But If War Comes, Market Vanishes.

(Editor's Note: The secret of German trade expansion in Guatemala and other Latin American Republics is disclosed in the following article by H. R. Knickerbocker, the noted foreign correspondent of International News Service, now on a tour of Central and Latin America.)

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
(INS Staff Correspondent)

(Copyright 1939 by International News Service. Reproduction In Whole Or Part Strictly Prohibited)

GUATEMALA CITY—Germans control perhaps fifty per cent of the principal Guatemalan business, coffee. But if world war comes, and the United States is on the "other side" from Germany, Guatemala will confiscate all German property.

The Germans have multiplied their sales to Guatemala by 800 per cent during the age of Hitler, since 1933. But the Guatemalan Cadet corps under the American West Pointer Colonel Victor W. Wales, drills better than the crack regiments of the reichswehr.

A Solution for U. S.

That is politically more important perhaps than the phenomenally increased German sales, inflated by that airy currency known as the Aski Mark. If the United States had a Colonel Wales in each of the Latin American countries there would be less cause to worry about the American position south of the Rio Grande. If the United States were to inaugurate a policy of supplying the needs of the Latin American republics for military supplies, guns and ammunition, as well, there would be no need to worry at all.

I watched the 117 cadets of the "Escuela Politecnia" parade. It was a lesson in leadership. These boys, nearly all of them pure Indian, drilled with a finish I had not seen even among the elite corps of the German army, reputedly the best drilled in the world.

38 Per Cent Bait.

Unfortunately there is only one Colonel Wales, and there are a great many millions of Aski Marks. Gral. Jorge Ubico, president of Guatemala, likes Colonel Wales and does not like the Nazis, but nobody with any business sense can resist a 38 per cent discount and that is the weapon with which the Germans are undermining American trade here and throughout Latin America.

The aski mark works this way and it is essential to know how it works if one is to understand what is happening to Latin American trade. All purchases made by Germany in Guatemala are paid for in aski marks, that is to say scrip, good only for buying German goods.

Like all money, aski marks are tokens, but tokens for payment only in Germany, and only for goods. But the aski mark is worth 29 cents to Germany when she buys Guatemalan coffee for example, and this same mark is worth 40 cents to the Guatemalan when he buys German axes.

Under this system if a Guatemalan exporter sells $100 worth of coffee to Germany, he is paid for this $100 worth of coffee in aski marks at the rate of 29 cents to the aski mark, or a total of approximately 345 aski marks. But with these aski marks he can purchase goods, (in Germany only), at a rate of 40 cents per aski mark, the nominal value of the Reichsmark.

Purchases Multiply.

Consequently for the $100 worth of coffee he sells to Germany he can get German goods worth $138. (345 times 40 cents). This $38 premium is the bait that attracts the customer, and it has worked so well that Guatemala, who bought $739,867 worth of German goods in 1933, the year Hitler came to power, bought last year around $6,000,000 worth, or eight times as much.

This is the cleverest of all the schemes invented by the ingenious though unappreciated Dr. Horace Greely Hjalmar Schacht, recently head of the reichsbank, and until he was fired, the veritable brain that made Hitler's economic machine go round. His gadget was to compel every purchaser of German goods in aski marks to put up an additional percentage of good money, world exchange, dollars, pounds, or any other real currency, for additional purchases in Germany.

Guaranteed Favorable Balance.

Thus in all cases wherein Germany is able to carry on her trade in aski marks she is guaranteed a favorable trade balance. In all these cases she spends no money abroad at all, and receives sufficient foreign exchange to buy elsewhere in markets where she is compelled to spend real money.

It is an unbeatable system so long as Germany lasts. The old systems of government subsidized "dumping" were crude in comparison. The present German foreign trade monopoly is a perfected form of the Soviet Russians' invention. The only difference is the difference between a one-cylinder buggy wheel auto of 1910 and a stream-lined 12-sylinder 1939 model.

To Gral. Ubico the German economic power and political pretensions are menacing. But only in peace time. War would end the aski marks and wipe out the Germans' mortgages. In war time Colonel Wales' cadets would all be officers.

Food Brought In In Tubs for Concentration Camp Prisoners

Political prisoners bring in food supplies in concentration camp on Havel river . . . Note there are four guards, two prisoners.

"I Suffered in a Concentration Camp"

Powerful Secret Police Hold All Germans In Bond of Fear

EDITOR'S NOTE: A man who read an anti-Nazi newspaper, suffered the tortures of a German concentration camp — and escaped after two years—writes graphically of his experiences in a series of four exclusive articles for Central Press and The News-Journal. This is the second story.

By CARL HARDER
Escaped Prisoner From German Concentration Camp.

ERIE, Pa.—The concentration camp is one of the most effective methods of the Gestapo to rid Germany of political opponents as well as all those who are not outspokenly for the fuehrer.

The concentration camps are not under the jurisdiction of the courts, but are independently in the hands of the Gestapo, which consists of S. S. men, the Elite Guards of the Third Reich.

The Gestapo respects no law but its own. They can arrest and send to concentration camps all those whom they consider "questionable."

But that is not all! Every political prisoner who has been condemned to a concentration camp, a penitentiary or an ordinary prison must be turned over to the Gestapo one day before his dismissal. For an indefinite period he will be sent to another camp, even though he has served his term.

The power of the Gestapo is such that they can arrest persons who have been acquitted by the courts!

Spies Are Everywhere.

A well-thought-out spying system holds every German citizen, every family, every group, in fearful bondage. No one knows who the informer might be—a neighbor, the waiter in the cafe, a guard in the public park, a brother, a "friend."

That's why Germans are whispering nowadays—and before whispering, they make absolutely sure that there can't possibly be any spies who might overhear fragments of the conversation. The fear of the secret police and its methods is great.

Arrests are made on flimsy reasons: a report of someone who has a grudge against his neighbor, a statement of a moron, a criminal —or, no reason at all—are justifications for arrest.

And while the prisoner is safely hidden in the dungeons of the secret police, his mail is directed to police headquarters, his apartment or his house is turned upside down, his trunks are broken into, his library is searched for forbidden books, his bank accounts are confiscated.

Outdo Torture of Dark Ages.

The process of a "trial" is a beastly, bloody procedure that surpasses the methods of torture employed during the Dark Ages. The prisoners are "broken in" while they are confined in damp, dark, underground holes; they suffer brutal beatings, hunger, confinement in the dark, and those mental agonies which spring from the fear that friends and members of their families might be drawn into this.

After such an experience, a prisoner must break down; he admits, signs and swears to anything; he says that he is guilty, that he is an enemy of the state.

Then, after an indefinite length of time—sometimes that amounts to 16 months — a prisoner is brought to trial before a court and a judge who, feverish with haste and eagerness to punish, are determined in their efforts to prove the guilt of the accused.

The judge goes by the statement signed during the "questioning" by the Gestapo. The prisoner may exclaim in despair that, under such brutal treatment he would have signed anything, admitted anything, just to bring those beastly beatings to an end—all this is of no avail. He HAS signed the statement—that is enough to give him two and a half years or more.

Eyes On Every German.

But the duties of the Gestapo are not just confined to discovering enemies of the Third Reich!

They have to watch all German people in their reaction to the Nazi regime. Supposing someone applies for a passport. Although this is a matter which is handled by the passport office, the document cannot be issued without consent of the Gestapo, which has found that the applicant is "politically dependable."

Ultra-modern methods of recording with which the Gestapo offices are supplied, register everything about the prisoner: to which party he has belonged; whether or not he is a member of a Nazi organization; whether or not he is a Jew; if, at all times, he has willingly and generously contributed to the frequent collections made by the government; if he is a member of the church—not a phase of the prisoner's life is left uncovered.

A person who has been punished for political reasons cannot obtain a driver's license or a work permit; he cannot engage in any form of business. His existence has been destroyed, and all means are employed to prevent a possible comeback.

Secret Police In Churches.

Church services are not free from Nazi spies. Secret policemen in civilian clothes listen carefully to the sermon. No excursion boat leaves the pier unless the Gestapo men who mingle with the crowd have taken all the pictures they need to check up on "suspicious" persons.

Gestapo spies are in the streets, in the stores, in the restaurants. Even in neighboring countries, such as Denmark, Holland, Switzerland, the individual is not safe from Nazi supervision. The spies mingle with the tourists—they look like tourists, they act like tourists—and every critical word which is spoken unguardedly means persecution and punishment.

The Gestapo is the ogre which terrorizes the German people, which educates them to lies and hypocrisies.

It is only because of fear that votes for Hitler are given; only fear makes the citizens hang out Nazi banners and swastikas; only fear quiets all discontent about food shortage; only fear is behind all those contributions made to the frequent drives arranged by the government; only fear makes hundreds and thousands yank up their arms in the stiff Hitler salute—for, when a Gestapo car stops in front of your house, when the door bell rings and two strangers take you between them and lead you back to the car—then, the end has come!

Then it is too late; then there is no future but the concentration camp.

Next: Days of Misery.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1939.

There's a Way to Go Forward.

BOTH in the Hopkins speech at Des Moines last Friday night, and in President Roosevelt's letter to leaders in the opposing ranks of organized labor, is seen an administration effort to inspire confidence and gain the co-operation of labor in attempting to encourage private enterprise in moving toward a much-to-be-desired annual national income of $80,000,000,000.

An unfortunate phase of the Hopkins appeal is that the past record of this administration spokesman has not been such as to inspire confidence either in his knowledge of business and finance, or in the sincerity of his present expression of a friendly attitude toward what is known as the capitalistic system.

The experience of Mr. Hopkins as a social worker has been that of an idealistic thinker, concerned only with the distribution of contributed money, rather than with the means by which this money was accumulated through productive effort.

The position of President Roosevelt, as evidenced by his New Deal policies, is no less idealistic, and takes little account of the human elements which obstruct more rapid progress toward the utopia that he so optimistically visions.

The United States of America has latent resources and sufficient genius to reach or pass the goal of eighty billion dollars in national income, but the problem of co-ordination must be more intelligently handled than in the past six years if the desired results are to be accomplished.

Present conditions in the ranks of organized labor, for instance, are such as to seriously retard a movement toward industrial recovery and reduction of unemployment, as note the factional strife in CIO ranks which resulted in a temporary shut-down of several automobile plants in Detroit last week, with consequent disruption of production schedules.

Quick acceptance by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, of the President's appeal for conciliation of AFL and CIO differences cannot be regarded as an actual step toward labor harmony, for it is made clear by Mr. Green that the Communistic influences which have been injected into the CIO cannot be tolerated in a united labor group.

There is hope, however, that the common sense of the great rank and file of organized labor will very soon take a determined stand for sound leadership and that present differences will be ironed out, in the interests of America as a whole.

When this has been done, and when the national administration turns from policies of wishful thinking to those of practicable progress—then there may be reasonable expectation of advancement to the $80,000,000,000 annual national income.

Evidence of Guilt Required.

LAXITY or incompetence of some police officers in failing to collect evidence sufficient to prove guilt of an accused person, as commented upon Saturday by Judge Kalbfleisch, of municipal court, is not a new condition in Mansfield.

This same element of weakness has been heretofore mentioned by city solicitors upon whom the task devolved to try cases in which defense was made by persons arrested under charge of some violation of law.

While police officers may not be expected to have legal knowledge equal to that of an attorney, it should at least be safely assumed that every member of the police department is sufficiently versed in criminal law, and in rules of evidence, to know the essential factors in properly presenting a case in court—and to realize that more than circumstantial evidence is required for conviction.

In any arrest, it may be well to recall, there is an assumption of innocence until guilt is proved—not assumption that arrest is proof of guilt, as sometimes seems to be the policeman attitude.

There is also the matter, referred to by Judge Kalbfleisch of police officers requiring that injured parties file charges, rather than taking the initiative themselves and securing the sworn statements of witnesses. If this is not now being done, except in accidents involving a fatality, there is serious dereliction which should be immediately corrected.

Hines Conviction Points the Way.

CONVICTION of James J. Hines, powerful leader of New York's malodorous Tammany, means more than a triumph for District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey—it means that the conscience of a great city is being awakened to realization that graft and corruption are not "necessary evils" and that they can be weeded out by fearless officials, even when their tendrils extend into high places.

This accomplishment in New York city should serve to encourage action along similar lines in other cities, large and small, where racketeering of various sorts has been a part of underworld activity, with full knowledge of police departments and other law enforcement officials.

Little can be hoped for, along lines of civic betterment, in Mansfield, Richland county, or wherever it may be, unless responsible officials act honestly, capably and fearlessly in performance of their duties.

Neglected High School Auditorium.

EXTENT to which the Senior high school auditorium must be depended on for use by public gatherings of any considerable size appears to justify more attention to cleanliness and upkeep than it has been receiving, judging by the frequency of complaints being heard.

The clatter of heating apparatus interfered with enjoyment of last week's concert; automatic heat regulation was apparently out of order and resulted in uncomfortable warmth after the audience had assembled; stage dirtiness attracted public notice during a recent entertainment and the proscenium arch draperies have the appearance of being uncleaned for years.

While expense is necessarily involved in upkeep of public property such as this, it seems that income from use, coupled with school funds made available for that purpose, would be sufficient to provide for proper care, replacement of draperies and occasional redecoration of the auditorium.

The subject is at least of such general comment as to justify mention, with suggestion of action.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — So eager is the administration to do away with the exemption that the state and federal governments enjoy from each other's taxes that it is almost running over itself.

In fact it now stands before the supreme court both for and against the proposition. One of its more remote "left hands" away out in Utah didn't know what the "right hand" in Washington was doing.

Soon the court is to begin hearing the appeal of the New York state tax commission from a decision of state courts holding that the salary of James O'Keefe, an attorney in New York for the Home Owners Loan corporation, could not be taxed by the state.

The New York commission may have been skating on thin ice when it moved in on the case, as the states generally have been trying to escape a change in the supreme court rulings which held that the states and federal governments could not tax one another's employes.

But the state came in on a special proposition. It argued that O'Keefe was not truly an employe of the government but an employe of a government corporation, HOLC. O'Keefe, claiming exemption, won the battle in state courts. The tax commission appealed.

Immediately the federal government intervened, happy at a chance to ask the supreme court to overrule its 67-year-old decision.

* * *

Yes . . . And No.

THE fact that congress has done nothing in those years to eliminate the exemption does not prove that it sanctions them, argued the government, speaking through Solicitor General Robert Jackson.

But out in Utah a somewhat similar case developed. W. Q. Van Cott, an attorney for the Reconstruction Finance corporation, claimed exemption from state income taxes. He won in the state courts. Utah appealed.

Van Cott argued that congress, by ignoring the exemptions for 69 years, had indicated that it DOES sanction the exemption. That was directly opposite to Jackson's position in the O'Keefe case.

In any event the supreme court will hear the two arguments together early in March.

The New York law specifically exempts federal salaries from taxation but the state tax commission argues that O'Keefe is an employe of an agency that is "non-essential." HOLC is really a federal mortgage bank.

* * *

Would Mean a Lot.

THE federal government insists that HOLC, even though not strictly governmental, nevertheless is a real federal agency.

The government argues that O'Keefe could be taxed if it were not for the state law.

Van Cott, out in Utah, however, takes the position that because he is a federal office holder he can't be taxed.

If the supreme court should reverse itself, thousands of state employes would at once be subject to federal income taxes. And likely enough the states and congress would lose no time opening up federal salaries to state taxation.

Already the house has passed a bill approving such taxation.

Originally the court held such taxation of one by the other was a dangerous and unconstitutional violation of the sovereignty of state and nation.

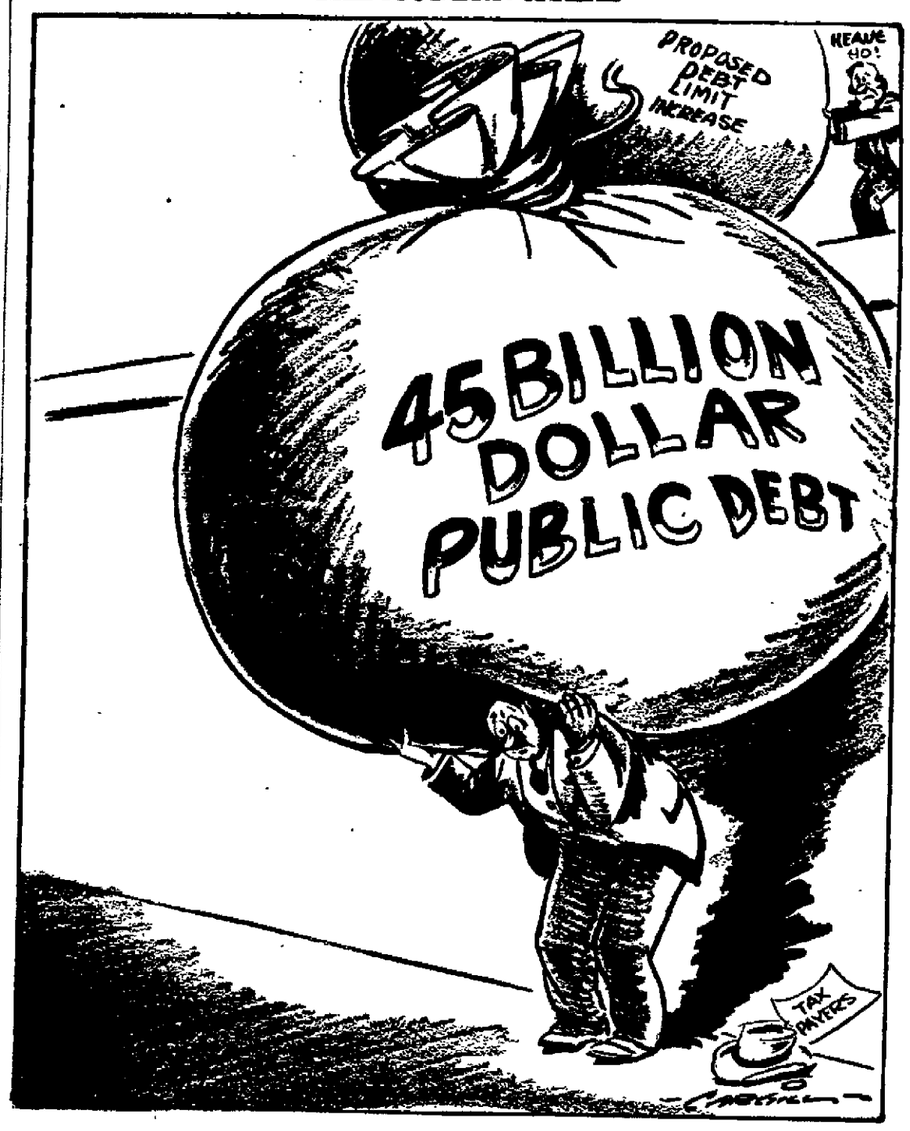
THE MODERN ATLAS



Meaning of the Hopkins Speech

—By MORGAN M. BEATTY

WASHINGTON—The heat is on to produce an 80-billion-dollar national income.

The New Deal is openly courting private business in the hope that this policy will encourage capital to go to work and yield that income.

The national annual income at the moment is estimated by President Roosevelt to be hovering around $60,000,000,000. In 1929 it was 81, in 1932 it was down to 40, and in 1937 up to 70.

An 80-billion dollar income would solve many problems for the New Deal and the nation. It would yield enough taxes at the present rates to balance the budget. It would automatically employ much of the nation's idle private money, producing new jobs and cutting the unemployed to a minimum. It would also demonstrate to the world that democracy works in the world's most powerful nation without the much touted "efficiency" method of dictatorship.

Harry Hopkins finds himself in the role of peacemaker and pacesetter because his department of commerce is the government's official meeting ground with business, and because he is generally accepted as closest of all New Dealers to President Roosevelt.

* * *

Two Schools to Consider.

HOPKINS recognizes two schools of thought on the subject of national income. The "confidence school" believes the government should put itself on record as promising NOT to harass business with more taxes and onerous regulation. Men in this school argue that confidence will coax money out of hiding, and eventually produce an 80-billion income.

The "hard-boiled school" on the other hand tells you investment money won't come out of hiding until the national income reaches the 80-billion mark, no matter how much confidence business receives from government. They insist that the income must be jacked up to the maximum by hook or crook before confidence can be restored.

Without disclosing his mind on the two schools. Hopkins has given his first attention to the confidence school.

For that reason, you may expect him to:

1 Co-operate with congress on incentive taxation—the kind of taxes that leave business with the incentive to make profits, instead of feeling that government takes all the profits.

2 Promote labor peace between AFL's Bill Green and CIO's John Lewis, and to explore the theory of annual wages for workers as a means of bringing them steadier and higher over-all income, and at the same time afford business a cheaper per unit cost of operation.

3 Favor writing a definite federal power policy, telling the great electric power industry that it can plan for the future with NO fear of further government invasion.

4 Extend a friendly hand to big business as such, so long as there is NO attempt to crush a weaker independent, or interfere with past New Deal reforms.

5 Take great interest in congress's so-called monopoly investigation, NOT with a view to cracking down on the bigness as such, but rather as the possible birthplace of a future national business policy. Such a policy might afford a way to tell business in advance what it can or cannot do. Today, business doesn't know about violating the anti-trust laws until somebody complains.

* * *

Others Interested.

OTHER departments than Hopkins' are interested in the peace drive. The whole push takes its keynotes from the president's annual address to congress, where he suggested the New Deal's social reforms were completed, and the time had come for invigorating recovery.

But the one common denominator on the business front is Hopkins, because his department is naturally interested in all the elements of a business upswing—labor, industry, transportation, electric power, and so on.

The main difficulty of his position at the moment is the danger that other cabinet members and shining lights might become suspicious that Harry Hopkins is tending to everybody's business, or, worse, that left wingers will suspect that he has deserted their cause and gone over to the conservative camp.

The next hurdle might be the suspicions of business men themselves.

Time will tell the story.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On Feb. 27, 1807, the famous American poet, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, was born at Portland, Me.

Listen, World!

"Unto You Is Born This Day, a Child"

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

(Yearly, readers of the "Listen World!" space are given a chance to become "Columnists for a Day" by discussing some outstanding topic. Today a proud young wife, Mrs H. W. F. of Rochester, N. Y., defies convention and creates beautiful precedent by speaking of the beauty, joy and deep peace of PROSPECTIVE MOTHERHOOD.)

THIRTY years ago the advent of a child was veiled in deepest secrecy, mentioned only to intimates. Even the words associated with birth were spoken in whispers. Rarely did the prospective mother have any reliable information concerning her condition or the culmination which she, usually, awaited with terror. Convention decreed that she must withdraw from public life and amusement, hide herself as if she were an abhorrent sight, venture forth only at night for the briefest exercise intervals.

Small wonder that the interval before birth was usually, for new mothers, a time of nervous instability . . . hysterical irritation, melancholy, morbid dread. No one, however, was disturbed by such symptoms. They were considered natural—"Sh! the poor child's in a Family Way!" And if a babe was born dead, or a young mother's mind went temporarily astray, that was also part of God's inscrutable will . . . never the inevitable consequence of savage stupidity and abuse!

So, within the memory of every reader of this article, the loveliest interval of a woman's life continued to be treated as a nightmare. Until, with one phrase—"blessed event"—an indignant father, Walter Winchell, defied and destroyed the whole nasty fabrication. Those two words did more to liberate women and sanctify maternity than all the laws ever written. At last a pregnant woman dared face the light of day frankly, joyously, proudly—as she was meant to do. And because of that, another prospect mother is able to come today with a communication unique in journalism—A SONG OF APPROACHING MOTHERHOOD!

"Dear Listen, World!

"I am about to have a baby! And these months have been so happy—so normal—that I wish to share their beauty with every young wife who may have been terrified by the dark, old superstitions and customs which still frighten so many.

"It is not dangerous or difficult today to have a baby—modern science has made the event both safe and easy. And the episode is so enriching that every young woman owes it to herself and her husband to enjoy the new companionship, the sense of proud filfillment which pregnancy brings.

"During the months of my baby's development, I have experienced a poise never before achieved, and have come to face life with a new confidence and philosophy, a new realization of reality. Indeed, both my husband and myself have developed a broader slant on life.

Pregnancy is without doubt woman's happiest estate. Nature has ordained it to be, normally, a time of high spirits and unusual physical fitness—and God has made it a time of happiness beyond words! It is a time of rejoicing for everyone over the little, new life about to be born . . . an occasion when all the friends should be allowed to share the thrill of preparation for the great adventure.

"And, lest any think that I speak with the confidence and abundant energy of youth, let me say that I am 34-years old, have been married 11 years and this is my first little one. Yet there is no shadow of fear on my heart—only boundless joy and gratitude for God's goodness."

MRS. H. W. F.
Rochester, N. Y.

Once a great poet wrote this deathless line: "She walks in beauty." Never could it more truly be said than of the woman who walks with her hand in God's and who shields with her proud heart His miracle of Life. Yet once she was—outcaste!

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

Why Is a Failure a "Fizzle"?

To begin grandly, and, at the moment of greatest expectation, to collapse—that is to fizzle out.

The project may not burn with a hissing sound before it dies aborning; but that is how it started.

The colloquialism is an allusion to the days of the old-fashioned musket, which, because the gunpowder was damp or for any other reason, failed to explode when fired, the priming of the pan burning with a hissing sound onomatopoetically termed fizzling and then going out.

Hence this figure of speech for an abortive effort, or a ridiculous as well as complete failure.

Daily Bible Thought

DIVINE STRENGTH: But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles.—Isa. 40:31.

Last Forty Popes Have Been Italians

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The lands which, during nineteen centuries, have contributed popes to rule over the Roman Catholic church, are listed in a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The last forty popes have been Italian, it is pointed out, yet there is no church law requiring the election of an Italian churchman to the papacy.

"Since the election of Clement VII, the 221st Pope, in 1523, all the leaders of the Roman Catholic church have been natives of Italy," says the bulletin. "Many of these Italian popes, however, served the church in other countries as did the late Pius XI who was once on ecclesiastical assignment to Poland.

French Rank Next.

"St. Peter, recognized by the church as the first pope, was a Galilean. Other popes were natives of Syria, Spain, Turkey, northern Africa, France, Greece, Germany, The Netherlands, England, and Portugal.

"Adrian VI, the only pope from The Netherlands, was the last non-Italian pope. He occupied the office for only a year and a half—Jan. 9, 1522 to Sept. 14, 1523. The single English pope, Adrian IV, headed the church from 1154 to 1159.

"Next to Italy, which was the native country of 214 of the 261 popes, ranks France, which has contributed fourteen popes. All of them reigned in the period between 999 when Sylvester II was elected, and 1378 which marked the death of Gregory XI. Greece (which included parts of Asia Minor) ranks next to France, having contributed ten popes. They preceded the French popes, occupying the papacy between the years 79 to 752. Six popes were natives of Germany, four were Syrians and three each were from Spain and Africa.

Cardinals From Many Lands.

"At present there are sixty-two members of the Sacred College of Cardinals. Upon them falls the responsibility of choosing the 262nd pope, successor to Pius XI. Thirty-five of the cardinals are Italians and 27 of other nationalities. The largest groups in the Sacred College are made up of the six French, four German, three Spanish, and three American prelates.

"The American cardinals are Cardinal William O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, Cardinal Dennis Dougherty, Archbishop of Philadelphia, and Cardinal George Mundelein, Archbishop of Chicago.

"Canada, Belgium, Hungary, Poland, Portugal, Ireland, Brazil, Czechoslovakia, Irak, Argentina and England each have one cardinal who may take part in the papal election and may, if duly elected, become the head of the Roman Catholic world."

A Farmer's Diary

Father-Son Banquet.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

MY OLDEST son and I were invited to attend a Father and Son banquet at a little country church north of town. It was muddy under foot, but warm and springlike for the last of February.

We arrived ten minutes early and parked our car beside the square frame church. Only two cars were there before us, but the sound of rattling dishes from within, and the odor of savory chicken cooking came to our senses. We sat there for a few minutes, while other folks arrived.

Across the road from this little white church was an old time rural cemetery. Even in the gathering dusk, I could see that some of the markers were very old, overgrown with moss and lichens and split from native shale.

When we entered we found a portion of the space was enclosed for Sunday school, cooking, and social gatherings. The other part had its pulpit and long high-backed wooden benches, which I found were very comfortable. While the good ladies prepared dinner, the men enjoyed a social time. There were old men and young men, growing boys and little babies. The young minister was there, with his family. The men were sturdy farmers, and although it was Saturday night, the bright lights of the nearby town had not lured them from their duty, —or their dinner.

It was a delectable dinner, served in the old fashioned way. Everything was on the table, and spoke of its goodness as one looked upon it. After the food, came the business meeting, which was opened with a fervent prayer for guidance. I thought how well it might be if every business meeting would so openly seek God's favor.

Then came a program of songs and varied thoughtful speeches. A man of seventy, with a fine spiritual face, gave a talk on the four seasons of the year, as analygous to human life—poetry he had written, himself.

I found in this little church true fellowship and inspiration—a place where life is free, happy and worth living.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—If he is nothing else, Derak Winston is a very persuasive guy. Mr. Winston is a bespoke tailor, and at the risk of being stared at by more fashionable acquaintances I will admit that I never knew what a bespoke tailor was until Mr. Winston, in a properly loquacious mood, faced me in his Madison avenue offices and explained.

A bespoke, it seems, is a tailor who accepts requests for handmade garments which are to be delivered at a future date. Mr. Winston is a bespoke tailor, which means really a maker of fine clothes for gentlemen, and he is also an authority on all matters of dress.

For instance, a short man should always have a portion of his shirt-cuffs showing, as it breaks the hipline and lends an illusion of added height.

The dark complectioned people should wear only dark flowers in their lapels. A burgundie carnation, say, for brunettes, or a deep red rose, although Mr. Winston, in an aside, privately expressed the opinion that only gourmets should wear roses. The carnation is the man's flower.

* * *

MR. WINSTON thinks the necktie is important, as dignity in clothes is often expressed by just the proper cravat. Regimental stripes and small-figured ties are deemed wisest for business men, with the more vivid colors reserved for evening.

All this attention to accessories is merely a service that Winston is pleased to provide for his clients, although tailoring itself is his major interest. He thinks any man with any livable income can be well-dressed, and it is his pleasure to create fine (well-tailored) clothes at a reasonable figure.

Years of experience in England gave Mr. Winston a thorough knowledge of fabrics, so that when he speaks of clearcuts (a fabric without nap), of Shetlands, you know that he knows what he is talking about.

While speaking of clearcuts he seized a near-completed garment to illustrate his point, and I said, "That's a nice looking coat. Who's it for?" . . . "For Harry McNaught," he replied. Mr. McNaught, as you know, is famous for his "Bottles" on Phil Baker's program. Bottles is only one of many celebrities who seek the Winston touch. Noel Coward invited him to "dress" his new show. "Set to Music," which he did.

And Tallulah Bankhead, the Alabama congressman's actress daughter, who said she didn't care who played the role of Scarlett O'Hara just so they let the South win, is on his order book for three tailored women's suits, which proved, Mr. Winston said, that for "suits really tailored, women must come to a man's tailor."

* * *

MR. WINSTON is the creator of the dress waistcoat (vest), which keeps the shirt in place and holds up the trousers. There are no duplicates to his fabrics, so that when a man orders a suit of clothes he knows that Joe, in the next block, isn't going to turn up the following week with one just like it. To some people this is important.

In a nutshell, Derak Winston believes this: "Being well-dressed is important to any business man. This does not necessarily mean being expensively dressed. But having your clothes tailored to you and to your personality has helped many men gain advantages that were important to their careers.

"After all," he says, "if two men of unknown talent were applying for the same job, the well-dressed man would get the call over the poorly-dressed one every time. That is human nature."

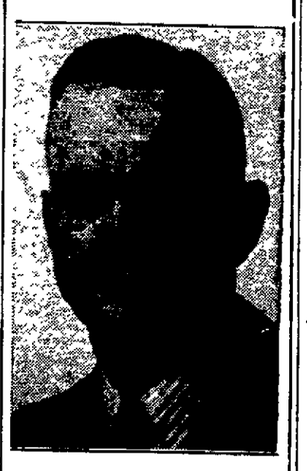
Snyder Heads Sales at Chevrolet



Bryan Snyder, prominent in the automobile business in Mansfield for many years, has just been appointed Sales Manager of the Mohican Chevrolet Company, succeeding C. M. Tropf, who has resigned.

Snyder was formerly connected with the local Chevrolet firm, his most recent association having been from September, 1933, until early in 1938, when he resigned to become Sales Manager for the Moore-McClaran Chevrolet Company at Ashland.

Assisting Snyder in the Sales Department are John Scheurer, Clarence Scheska, Charles Gimbel, Archie White, Fred Keller, R. N. Burkholder and Lloyd Wieland, most of whom were with the local Chevrolet firm before its change of management last July.

Other changes in the Chevrolet personnel include Kenneth Cochran, who has recently been appointed Parts Manager, succeeding Frank McCarthy, resigned. Harvey Bowers has also rejoined the organization, in charge of the Lubrication Department, succeeding William Lawler.

New Meat Dishes Offered

By PAULINE SCHOFIELD
Home Service Department of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company.

To those of you whose repertoire of main dishes is limited to steak and roast and pork chops we say—"Try Lamb". Here's a meat that people in some localities know scarcely at all. There's reason for that, too. Its only been the last years that lamb has been universally distibuated, and universally available at all seasons. No more need we wait for the advent of spring flowers to bring "spring lamb" to our markets. Actually, spring only begins the supply which grows and grows as the summer advances and reaches its peak in early fall

Irish Stew and Dumplings.
2 pounds lamb breast
6 carrots
3 onions
2 turnips
1 stalk celery
6 medium-sized potatoes
Salt and pepper
Dumplings

Cut the lamb into 1-inch cubes. Cover with hot water, cover the kettle tightly, and cook slowly for one hour Then add carrots and turnips, cut in pieces, onions, sliced, celery, cut into 2-inch lengths, and potatoes, cut into quarters. Season and continue cooking slowly until lamb and vegetables are done. During last fifteen minutes of cooking, drop dumplings on top of meat and vegetables and cook covered until the dumplings are done. Serve immediately.

Individual Lamb Pies.
2 pounds lamb breast or shoulder
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons lard
2 cups diced potatoes
1 cup peas
10 to 12 tiny button onions
Salt and pepper
Biscuit dough

Have lamb breast or shoulder cut into ½ to 1-inch cubes Dredge in flour and brown well in hot lard. Place browned lamb and vegetables into individual casserole dishes Season Rinse pan in which lamb was browned with hot water and pour over pies. Cover and cook in a moderate oven (350 F.) until lamb and vegetables are done, about one hour Fifteen minutes before serving, place baking powder biscuit rounds on top and bake. Increase oven temperature for long enough to brown the biscuits.

Roast Leg of Lamb.

Have the fell, that thin paper-like covering, left in place. Sprinkle the leg of lamb with salt and pepper, and place, cut side up, on a rack in an open roasting pan Insert a meat thermometer so that the bulb reaches the center of fleshiest part, making sure that it does not rest on fat or bone. If the fat covering is very thin, lay several slices of bacon over the top. Put the roast, uncovered into a slow oven (300 F.) and cook until done When the meat thermometer registers 175 F., it will be well done Allow thirty to thirty-five minutes per pound for roasting a leg of lamb.

Roast Leg of Lamb—Barbecue Sauce.
Leg of lamb
1 medium onion chopped
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons brown sugar
4 tablespoons lemon juice
1 small bottle catsup
1 tablespoon Worstershire sauce
½ teaspoon mustard
½ cup water
½ cup chopped celery

Roast leg of lamb as described above. Brown onion in butter, add other ingredients and simmer for thirty minutes. Serve with roast lamb.

Square Cut Lamb Shoulder—Spiced.
Lamb shoulder, square cut
Salt and pepper
6 whole cloves
12 whole allspice
3 tablespoons sugar
2-3 cup vinegar
1-3 cup water

Make a spicy sauce of cloves, allspice, sugar, vinegar and water Insert meat thermometer and roast as described on opposite page, basting frequently with the spicy sauce Allow thirty to thirty-five minutes per pound for roasting.

Rolled Shoulder—Currant Glaze.
Rolled lamb shoulder
Salt and pepper
½ glass currant jelly
Mint leaves

Have lamb shoulder boned and rolled at the market. Season and place fat side up on rack in open roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer and roast in a slow oven (300 F.) until done Allow forty to forty-five minutes per pound for roasting. A few minutes before serving, spread the roast with currant jelly, and return it to the oven until nicely glazed Serve with a currant-mint sauce, made by seasoning currant jelly with finely chopped mint.

When serving a game dinner, a light dessert should conclude the meal. This can be fresh or canned fruit, a light gelatin dessert, melon or a tart sherbet—no cake, however is needed with the latter. If a rather substantial fruit or vegetable salad is served, really no dessert is needed

Something New In Turnips

By BEULAH V. GILLASPIE
Director, Sealtest Laboratory Kitchen.

An inexpensive suggestion for a luncheon dish or main course dinner recipe, is this delicious Stuffed Turnips idea. And even those who are prone to turn from the homely turnip, find this dish entrancingly different

Stuffed Turnips.
6 medium white turnips
Melted butter
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1½ cups ground cooked ham
Salt and pepper
Peel or scrape the turnips and cut a slice from the root end of each. Scoop out the centers with a spoon leaving a thin shell. Chop the centers coarsely and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Cook shells and tops in boiling salted water until tender. Drain, and brush with melted butter While turnips are cooking melt the 2 tablespoons butter in a double boiler, add the flour and mix well. Add the milk gradually and cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add the ham and cooked turnip centers and reheat. Add salt and pepper to taste. Fill the turnip shells with this mixture and replace tops as illustrated Serves six.

Keep Makings of Quick Lunch Handy for Hungry Youngsters

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

MOTHERS of growing children would do well to keep a snack shelf, some special ledge in the kitchen for between-meal munching. That will take some of the bother out of life when son John and his hungry playmates romp in at the door for a bite.

Spreads that can be applied to bread or crackers in a minute please the youngsters. And they'll take the edge off ravenous young appetites without spoiling their relish for lunch or supper.

A Shelf Selection.

Here's a good selection: creamed peanut butter and raisins, cottage cheese and jam, a mild cream cheese or assorted jellies. They're all tempting with white Graham, brown or raisin bread. Keep the makings on the shelf and let the children spread their own Slightly sweet buns are popular An old-fashioned favorite is to cover white or Graham crackers with butter and jelly.

And don't stint on milk. Keep the refrigerator well stocked since milk is one of the most economical health-building foods

Fruits, too, are essential. Apples, bananas, oranges, pears and other kinds give a refreshing uplift to the tired youngster. Possibly a fruit basket stored in the refrigerator will interest the child in making several selections. Natural foods, rather mild flavored, are recommended to develop good dietary habits.

Fruit juices for warmer days make good partners for plain cookies, gingerbread or sandwich combinations.

Sweets should not be the main part of the between-meal bite. But you can provide a little as a "dessert."

Cookies cut in fancy shapes, or dropped and decorated with raisins and small candies or cake batter baked in individual cups add a festive touch. Plain gingerbread spread with simple white icing is quite a treat. Keep away from rich cakes with elaborate frostings and fillings. Encourage children to like plain cakes such as angel food or sponge, even if they have to be "dolled" up a little with bits of frostings. They look ornate but are easily digested.

Fo surprises, bowls of popped corn, peanuts, raisins, prunes, dates and small candy and nut bars, placed on a shelf will delight a youngster and make him pleased to share with any of his guests.

Keep a note book in a special place and jot down in it the foods to be used for the children's pick-ups. The children consult this book and proceed to enjoy the snack.

● When you borrow, you should know these facts about small loan rates. The Small Loan Law of this state permits a certain maximum rate to be charged for a loan. On all loans of more than $100 Household Finance does not charge the full rate!

Check these savings

Suppose you need $140. At the lawful maximum rate the cost of your loan for 30 days is $4.20. At Household's lower rates the charge is $3.80—a saving of 40c. On a loan of $200 the cost for 30 days at the lawful maximum rate is $6.00 At Household's rates the charge is $5.00—a saving of $1.00 (Thirty day loans are used as examples for convenience. Loans for longer terms naturally cost less per month.)

You may apply to Household Finance for a loan of $20 to $300. You need no stocks, bonds or other bankable security. No one need sign with you (married couples sign together). You get your loan without delay and without embarrassment to you.

3. Quick action. No tedious waiting.
3. Small monthly payments. Example: $5.00 first month, decreasing each month to $5.15 last month. repays a $100 loan in 20 months, including charges, provided principal is repaid as agreed.
4. Household Finance's monthly charge is less than the lawful maximum on all loans above $100.
5. Loan may be repaid ahead of schedule to reduce the cost. Charge is made on unpaid balance only
7. No credit inquiries made of friends or relatives. Private consultation rooms.
